Clarence Schmidt Ordered Out of Hadler's Nursing Home

By SID LEAVITT

KINGSTON — Clarence Schmidt, an eccentric and colorful artist who lost his home and major artwork in a 1969 fire, had yet another home taken away from him Wednesday.

Schmidt,79, whose flowing white beard had endeared him to neighborhood children as an Albany Avenue "Santa Claus," told officials he wouldn't be moved from Hadler's Nursing Home without "a lot of screaming and thrashing."

But he left quietly.

"He was strangely calm today. I've never seen him quite this calm," said Katherine E. Coons, assistant administrator of the nursing home where Schmidt had lived the past five years.

On orders of the state Department of Social Services, Schmidt and another patient were transferred by private ambulance Wednesday to Greene County Nursing Home in Catskill.

"I don't want to go," Schmidt murmured as the ambulance attendants helped him down the pillared front steps of the nursing home, taking him away from the old-fashioned porch where he had spent many a summer day waving at passing motorists and pedestrians.

Hadler's didn't want Schmidt to go, either.

But a Feb. 2 letter from William Steibel, deputy commissioner of the social service division of medical assistance, ordered the nursing home to transfer eight Medicaid patients on the basis of new life safety codes.

While the home is equipped with fire extinguishers, smoke detectors, sprinkler system and fire escape, its wooden structure and narrow halls don't meet the new standards, Mrs. Coons said.

"I'm sure they'll continue to hound us. They've been doing a damned good job of it so far," she said.

One more patient must be transferred by Friday, leaving the home with 21 patients.

Schmidt, who once lived as a recluse on Ohayo Mountain in Woodstock, came to Hadler's after being injured in a fire that destroyed a mountainside house that he had spent 40 years constructing from scrap metal and junk, a bizarre seven-story edifice that gained him

World in Brief

Wholesale Prices Take a Big Jump

WASHINGTON — Winter food and fuel shortages drove wholesale prices up 0.9 per cent in February, the biggest increase in 16 months, the Labor Department reported today.

The increase, which translates into a 10.8 per cent annual rate, was caused almost entirely by price hikes for fuel, food and farm products. These commodites have been in short supply due to the frigid weather.

The wholesale price of gasoline rose an average of 13 per cent between January and February.

Saccharin Ban Is in the Works

WASHINGTON — Diet-conscious America could lose its last legal sweetener for low-calorie soft drinks, candies and desserts if a Food and Drug Administration decision to ban saccharin goes into effect.

Acting FDA Commissioner Sherwin Gardner said at a news conference Wednesday that because of exhaustive Canadian tests and studies indicating high doses of the substance may cause bladder cancer in rats, the United States and Canada are taking immediate steps to ban saccharin from the marketplace.

He said the proposed ban will be published in the Federal Register as soon as necessary papers can be prepared, perhaps within 30 days, but he acknowledged that the length of the legal process means it could take up to four months or more before the sweetener actually disappears from retail shelves.

Lawmaker Faces Contempt on Drugs

TOPEKA, Kan. — A state legislator seeking to decriminalize possession of small amounts of marijuana — —which he says he has used regularly since college days — —was threatened Wednesday with criminal contempt proceedings if he does not cooperate in a drug traffic investigation.

Attorney General Curt Schneider questioned Rep. Mike Glover for an hour in his first closed-door interrogation of the 29-year-old lawmaker who last week told he Kansas City Star he has used marijuana since he was a junior in college.

Margaret Trudeau, the 28-year-old wife of Canada's prime minister, surfaced in New York Wednesday to watch Mikhail Baryshnikov dance, take a few pictures and squelch rumors that she had run off with the Rolling Stones.

"I'm a married lady," Mrs. Trudeau politely reminded reporters before cutting off persistent questioning.

The rumors linking Mrs. Trudeau, whose independent life style has occasionally raised conservative eyebrows, with the Rolling Stones began flying with a report that she had "disappeared" earlier this week from a Toronto hotel where the British rock group also was registered.

The rumors said the wife of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau was traveling with the musicians and staying with them in New York.

Laurie Edwards is led into court

Laurie Edwards Arraigned on Abandonment Charges

Children's Mother Held Without Bail

KINGSTON — Laurie Edwards, 23, returned to Kingston by sheriff's deputies Wednesday, was ordered held without bail for psychiatric examination after arraignment on charges she abandoned her three young children in a local welfare office.

Appearing tired, confused and at times crying softly, Mrs. Edwards told Esopus Town Judge Robert W. Jordan she hadn't intended to abandon the children. She said she had phoned a friend to tell her estranged husband to pick up the youngsters.

Surveying a handwritten note that the eldest child, 5-year-old Laurie, was holding when the youngsters were found by authorities six days earlier, Judge Jordan slowly read the introduction, "To whom it may concern."

"This is not addressed to your husband," the judge said.

"Sir, at that time I didn't know what I was doing," Mrs. Edwards replied in a near whisper.

Judge Jordan ordered the woman to Ulster County Jail and psychiatric examinations, setting March 29 for a preliminary hearing date. However, Ulster County grand jury action may intervene, officials said.

Depending on the psychiatrist's conclusions, the case could be transferred to family court for settlement without full prosecution of the charge of abandonment, a felony carrying a prison term up to four years.

Mrs. Edwards, arrested Tuesday in New Jersey at the Jersey City Medical Center after an apparent suicide attempt through a drug overdose, spoke little to Det. Lt. Arthur Nersessian and Deputy Robert King as they drove her back to Kingston, the men said.

"From Jersey up to here, we asked her once if she wanted coffee. She said 'yes,' and that was it," Nersessian said.

Evidence at the special Esopus Town Court arraignment included a written statment by a cousin, Roger Ouellette, who identified the abandoned children after seeing their photographs in the Daily Freeman.

"I left my children with you as I can't care for them any more," said the note asking that welfare authorities take care of Laurie, her brother Robert, 3, and sister Kitty, 2.

The children have been placed in a foster home.

Richter's 'Misconduct' Detailed

Prisoners Accuse Judge

By LYNN MULVANEY
Freeman staff

WHITE PLAINS — Three witnesses in the misconduct trial of Kingston City Judge Hubert A. Richter testified Wednesday that he made a murder accusation against a man exonerated of manslaughter charges, that he raised his hand to a handcuffed prisoner in an angry confrontation and that his breath smelled of liquor during a sentencing.

Richter was suspended last December by the New York State Commission on Judicial Conduct pending the outcome of the hearings that started here Tuesday.

The prisoner whom Richter sentenced in his office two years ago without benefit of counsel, Nicholas Malanios, testified earlier that when he came before the judge on a burglary charge, Richter did not honor a prior agreement to impose a concurrent rather than a consecutive sentence.

Two other prisoners sentenced at the same time, Michael Traficante and Thomas Silva, also testified Wednesday that there was a prior agreement with Richter that Malanios be given a sentence to run at the same time as one imposed the day before in county court.

Malanios and Traficante are now on parole and Silva is serving a term at state prison in Ossining.

Washington Police Fear Bloodbath

Justice Dept. Tries to Save Hostages

WASHINGTON(UPI) — One man is dead, at least eight persons are seriously injured and 100 others are hostages of the Hanafi Muslim groups that assaulted three buildings here Wednesday morning, leaving the nation's capitol in a state of siege.

The Hanafi Muslims broadcast a warning to police today that any attempt to free the hostages would jeopardize their lives.

Maurice Williams, 24, a reporter for Howard University Radio Station WHUR was shot to death Wednesday when Muslims invaded the District Building. City Councilman Marion Barry is in serious condition after being shot in the chest, and Robert Pierce, a 51-year-old law student is in critical condition with gunshot wounds.

As the Justice Department negotiated today to save the hostages, fears of a bloodbath enfeebled police.

"We're not discussing any elements of the negotiations, who is participating or what the demands are," said John Russell, a Justice spokesman. One report said diplomats from Moslem countries were playing a role in the negotiations.

Earlier, the terrorists shouted religious rage and vague, escalating demands and threats in a series of radio interviews.

"I have men waiting to do something very, very bad," warned Hamaas Abdul Khaalis.

Washington is stunned.

The ordeal has laid bare the capital's vulnerability to terrorism and focused worldwide attention of the government's momentary helplessness at the hands of a few willful men.

Sirens screamed. Through the night, floodlights played against the

7% Solution Causes Problems

The new seven per cent county sales tax is causing many businessmen penny-ante computation problems.

When the legislature office asked the state department of taxation and finance for a new sales tax chart to distribute to retailers, restaurants and the variety of vendors covered under the law, the state obliged.

It sent back exactly four.

The county has been reproducing them on its copying machine, but many merchants are still without the tax collection list and waitresses, sales persons and small store owners are wearing down their pencils trying to figure out what seven per cent of $3.78 is.

For the penny-weary here is a copy of the collection chart to clip and save.

Cocaine Sale Charged

KINGSTON— A 19 year old Kingston resident has been arrested and charged with selling cocaine, after a month long investigation by the narcotic and BCI units of the New York State Police.

Micheal Golgoski of 1118 Dogwood Street was taken into custody in the Town of Ulster yesterday and charged with criminal sale of a controlled substance second degree. The youth allegedly sold half and ounce of coke, with a street value of about $1,365, to an undercover state police investigator.

At the time of his arrest, Golgoski was reportedly in possession of marijuana, cocaine, barbiturates and a hypedermic syringe. The youth also faces additional charges of criminal

No More Egging 'Em On

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — B. J. Gibbs has stopped spiking his chickens' water.

To compensate for an unusally hard winter, the Fairfield County farmer had been adding a vitamin additive to water for his 30 white leghorns.

The results were obvious Sunday when one of his hens laid a 5½-ounce egg. That's about three times bigger than the grocery's "large" eggs.

Complaining that people just don't buy eggs that big, Gibbs said he was withdrawing the super additive.

Happiest about that decision may be Gibbs' hen, which was unable to stand for several days after laying her big egg.

Winter Tough on Bees, Too

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Blame it on the harsh midwestern winter — many honey bees are either dead or suffering from irregularity.

As a result, the cost of pollination services in Michigan is sure to go up. The prices of honey and fruit may rise, as well.

Michigan State University bee specialist Roger Hoopingarner said that many bee colonies in the state were killed due to a lack of flight days needed to eliminate waste.

The bees ate more food than usual this winter — nature's way of maintaining additional heat in the colony — when temperatures dipped below or hovered near zero for weeks.

But the unusually cold weather prevented the usual January thaw, preventing the bees from taking their annual winter flight.

Cat Comes to the Rescue

PASCO, Wash. (UPI) — A truck driver from Butte, Mont., will get $6,900 back thanks to a playful Siamese cat.

The cat nonchalantly discovered the cash — all in $100 bills —while browsing behind a television set in a room at the Red Lion Motor Inn.

James Wenzig of Spokane, Wash., the cat's owner, saw the money and turned it over to police Sunday and police found the man who lost the cash, Sam Holverson.

The Montana man stayed in the same room Jan. 28 after selling a truck at auction for $7,000. He said he took $100 to celebrate and when he returned to the motel room couldn't find the remainder.

Holverson, who thought he had hidden the money under his mattress in the room, said he'd return immediately to pick it up.

Their 'Moonies' Range From 21-26

Parents Want 'Em Back

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Parents from five states want to legally deprogram their offspring who have become "moonies," even though their sons and daughters range from 21 to 26 years of age.

The parents went to Superior Court Wednesday to ask mandatory 30-day custody of the the young adults who have become converts to ideas espoused by Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church.

Heated charges of "brainwashing" tactics were made by both sides in the dispute.

An attorney for the parents, said the young converts — — members of New Education Development Systems — were being "financially raped" by a "cult."

An attorney for the offspring replied they were being "spiritually raped" by attempts to deny them the choice of their own religion.

The parents — from New York, New Jersey, California, Ohio and Oregon — faced their children in what legal authorities regarded as an unprecedented open court battle over the issue.

Most previous petitions for conservatorship of "moonies" have been decided in a judge's closed chambers. Supporters of the Korean evangelist regard conservator petitions as "kidnapings" in which converts are forcibly "deprogrammed" against their will.

Before a packed courtroom, Assistant Oregon Attorney General Raymond P. Underwood took the stand as the first witness and said his daughter, Barbara, 25, had been hypnotized, mesmerized and brainwashed.

He said she transferred her savings, about $300 or $400, to the "cult" she joined and he regarded it as a political rather than religious group.

He testified before Superior Judge S. Lee Vavuris that she had become "childlike" in her beliefs, that he had not seen her since 1975 and that when he spoke to her by phone, her voice had become "stilted ... kind of a sing-song voice."

Lt. Gov. Krupsak Visits Kingston

By SID LEAVITT
Freeman staff

KINGSTON — Lt. Gov. Mary Anne Krupsak came to the city today to launch a series of conferences aimed at greasing the wheels of bureaucracy to bring about social and economic improvements.

Lining up to talk with the lieutenant governor at her community conference on employment, the second such series of talks in the state, were scores of representatives from business, labor, education, recreation, government and other walks of life.

At a tour of the Children's Rehabilitation Center before the conferences began, Miss Krupsak said handicapped and other social service groups might be helped by a new system of reporting to the state on individual problems and how they are being met locally.

Statewide analysis of such data could lead the way to quicker action by the bureaucracy, Miss Krupsak told David J. Panner, executive director of the center.

State agencies in the past have been burdened with such a fast-growing administrative load, there has been little time for management decisions, the lieutenant governor said. But she hoped for "positive changes."

Panner said the state legislature's freeze on outpatient rates has cost his center $15,000 in 1976, not counting $5,000 in free services the center provided for those unable to pay.

At least 50 more area children could receive services, if funds were available, Panner said.

Miss Krupsak said her goal in the area conferences is to become a "catalyst" in dealing with federal and state agencies on solutions to social and economic problems.

Joined by Kingston Mayor Francis R. Koenig, a fellow Democrat, Miss Krupsak took a brief walk through uptown Kingston before beginning the employment conference at the Colonade Restaurant.

Gazing at the Victorian facades on Wall Street, Miss Krupsak said the community had done an "amazing" job with the Pike Plan and other uptown urban renewal.

One of those greeting the lieutenant governor along the sidewalk tour was Alice Herzog, an employe of London's clothing stores, who said the city is "very proud of our mayor."

Businessmen Stanley London, Glenn Stamfle, Theodore Weiner and Clifford V. Bunting showed Miss Krupsak photographs of Wall Street before renovation.

Board, Association in Agreement

Library Transaction Completed

KINGSTON— As expected, the Kingston Board of Education and the Kingston Area Library Association have reached an agreement whereby the school district will purchase the library and property at the corner of Broadway and Andrew St. and the library will move to the Sojourner Truth School on Franklin St.

In announcing the agreement at a joint school board/library board meeting Wednesday night, Frederick Hofbauer, president of the Kingston Board of Education, said the school district will pay the library $125,000 for the building and the one acre of land it stands on. The library will lease the Sojourner Truth School, which is closing this June due to a declining enrollment, for $1 per year "for a term to be negotiated."

Michael Dvorocsik, president of the library board, says that preliminary estimates indicate that it will cost about $350,000 to convert the 97-year-old school into a library. However, he quickly noted that once renovated, the building will meet the criteria that his board has set in its search for a new facility.

"A study taken five years ago said that a library which serves a community the size of this one should have about 15,000 square feet of space," Dvorocsik said. "We currently have about 8,000, but the new site has over 16,000. In addition, the school will be accessible to the handicapped, which the present library is not."

He went on to point out that the central location and the adequate parking facility at the school make it "a realistic and practical solution to the library's problem."

The move will also enable the library and the children's library, which have been separated since a 1975 fire, to be joined under one roof. said that circulation at the children's library has been down since it was relocated at the Millard Building following the fire.

As for the fate of the 75-year-old library building, Hofbauer says the school district has received state approval for use of the building for classroom space during the high school renovation project, but "we don't have any permanent use for the building in mind."

Hugh Reynolds, chairman of the library board building committee, says it will be late October or early November before the school can be converted and opened for use as a library.

ROSENDALE NEWS

'Bare Bones' Budget Revealed

ROSENDALE — Mayor Marc Phelan has released details of a "bare bones" budget to carry Rosendale from June 1 to Dec. 31, when the village will be dissolved.

Total expenditures for the seven months are $41,358. Estimated revenues of $21,512 reduce the amount to be raised by taxes to $19,846, which translates to a tax rate of $5 per thousand of assessed valuation.

The current budget lists expenditures of $102,068, revenues of $29,630 and $72,438 to be raised by taxes, with a tax rate of $14.71 per thousand.

Phelan said that, even allowing for a shortened fiscal year, expenditures have been reduced considerably. Cuts which are more than five-twelfths of current budget figures have been made in several areas, especially street maintenance and snow removal.

Street maintenance, set at $15,500, is down to $4,000, the cost of a contract to have the work done by town highway crews. Snow removal will cost the village just $500, the price of another contract with the town. The village's highway department has already been phased out.

Another large reduction has been made in police services, currently $15,003 but down to $5,500 in the new budget. Phelan said some police coverage would be paid for with revenue sharing funds if necessary "but we hope to have a merger (with town police) before that happens."

Shared services is another area in which a large cut has been proposed, with the new figure at $2,916. The current budget lists an expenditure of $7,500.

Phelan said it was impossible to cut the budget by eliminating positions, with the exception of policemen. Police commissioners Wilton Myers, Steve Huben and Dedrick Werner have been working on a merger with town police that "hopefully will give us 24-hour service for both town and village."

The budget, prepared by Phelan in his capacity as village budget officer, will be the subject of a public hearing some time late in March and will be considered by trustees for adoption at the board's April meeting.

SAUGERTIES NEWS

Aaron Hopeful on Library Help

KINGSTON — Settlement of an overdue contract between the Kingston Water Board and ts unionized employes is expected within two weeks, according to sources on both sides.

A one-year contract offering no pay raises but no job cuts should be acceptable to union members on the basis of a report released this week by a state Public Employment Relations Board factfinder, union negotiator James F. Green said Wednesday.

Guarded optimism also was expressed by Edwin F. Radel, acting water department administrator, who said the board several times has felt the contract was "close to settlement" except for a wording disagreement on one aspect of reopening salary talks.

In the event that any of the three management personnel were given raises, the union wanted a contract clause guaranteeing that "negotiations shall be reopened" on its salaries. However, the board would agree only to a side letter showing its willingness to "meet and confer" in such a case.

PERB factfinder Theodore Gerber recommended the side letter approach with a wording compromise to the effect that salaries would be "discussed" in the event of management raises.

"I would envision that the union would settle on this approach within two weeks," Green said.

The union apparently some time ago agreed to a no-raise contract, provided no jobs be cut. At least one other city union, the Kingston Patrolmen's Association, got a PERB judgment that granted raises to police officers but resulted in a five-slot cutback through attrition.

Water department negotiations started in September, but the union within a month declared an impasse. Water workers got a 14 per cent salary increase over the term of their last two-year contract which expired in December.

'We Don't Want Another Plattekill'

Esopus Garbage Hearing Set

PORT EWEN — The Esopus Town Board will hold a public hearing at 7 p.m. Wednesday, March 23, in the town hall in Port Ewen to discuss changes in the town's trash and garbage law.

Supervisor Joseph Sills Jr. said the board wants to change the law to restrict out-of-town trash and garbage from being dumped at the town landfill off Floyd Ackert Road.

"We don't want another Plattekill situation in our town," Sills said.

A ban on out-of-town dumping is included in the operational guideline for the landfill, but does not have the force of law.

The town board Wednesday night approved a five-year contract with the Dr. Richard E. Gordon family for use of their property as the town landfill. Rental will be $4,000 a year, up from the $2,000 yearly rental under the expired eight-year contract.

The town will also reimburse the owners for all gravel and other materials removed from the site for use by the town highway department.

Sills said town officials were encouraged to learn that about 30 contractors have expressed interest in bidding on various phases of construction of the new town highway garage in Port Ewen. Highway Superintendent Joseph Clark said preliminary site work is being done and an office for the clerk of the works has been constructed there.

Bids will be opened for the garage at 2 p.m. Tuesday, March 22, with construction expected to begin May 1 and run for about 60 days.

Sills said no decision has been received yet from the Postmaster General's office about door-to-door mail service in Port Ewen.

No Pay Raises, No Job Cuts Either

Water Contract Settlement Near

SAUGERTIES — The roof leaks; the gutters are rotted; and water flows down the wall through the foundation and into the basement. Nathan Aaron could have been talking about a condemned tenement in the East Bronx, but he was describing instead the Saugerties Library.

"I've been coming here for two years about water in the library," the persistent Aaron reminded the village board. "I've brought it up so many times you must think I have water on the brain. But there's money invested in that building, and you're letting it go to rot. I was here only some weeks ago about needed repairs, and we've had quite a few floods in the basement in the meantime."

Aaron's patience had worn thin when he heard the board approve $577 for formica tops and a tile floor in the R.A. Snyder Fire Company kitchen. It had run out entirely when the board agreed to pursue a possible $150,000 addition to C.A. Lynch Fire Company rooms.

"You've got all this money for the fire department," chastised Aaron. "How come there's none for the library?"

Buildings Commissioner John Carnright attempted to pour placating oil on the troubled basement waters. Money for roof and heating repairs at the library would be included in this year's proposed budget, he said.

Hopefully, funds to cover work bids would remain in the 1977-78 budget, said Carnright, "unless they get cut off" when the budget is approved April 15.

Aaron said he was "encouraged," but noted other water problems were created by bad grading behind the library on the adjoining school's blacktop. That problem won't be solved until the new sewage plant is in operation more than two years from now, said trustee Robert Lehmann. The village is under order by the state not to allow such run-off waters into local sewers, he noted.

From library money matters, the board moved on to sewage plant financing problems. Turned down last week for a $300,000 HUD community block grant for storm and sewage separation work required for the plant, the board must find other funding.

Mayor Erika Hinchey couldn't understand HUD's rejection of the application. "We have to complete the separation project before we can receive all allocated state and federal money for the plant," she said. "Who could possibly be in a worse situation to deserve a grant more than our people on Market St.," she wondered.

Hinchey will ask for copies of the top 10 grants approved over Saugerties. They might provide clues, she felt, on "what we're doing wrong, and what successful applicants applied for and how." The board will also press Congressman Hamilton Fish for help.

Hinchey's reference to worsening conditions on Market St. was well-timed. Dozens of parishioners at Atonement Lutheran Church on the street had just logged long hours cleaning up sewer backup in the church basement and parish center. The board was notified that, during a storm, there's no way of stopping sewers until the storm stops. The church is logging all the work created by the problem and keeping a running total of expenses, for which it expects reimbursement from the village.

Discussion of water matters surged from a trickle to a downpour before ending. The more than 30 homeowners in the town's Cafaldo Park area who had petitioned a year ago for access to village water wanted an answer to their request.

Hinchey said she had told the town board the village wanted no more water extended outside its boundary, but the village would be willing to discuss town extension of the Glasco Water District to increase its boundaries. She had heard nothing further from the town since, she noted.

Trustee Robert Lehmann was even more specific. "We know Cafaldo resi dents want the water," he said, "but nobody ever came and asked us. No Park homeowner made a formal request to this board, and all contact has been between Cafaldo petitioners and the town."

It was not the village that was avoiding the issue, he insisted. "If the town wants action from us on Cafaldo," he said, "let the town take some long-delayed action on consolidation of town and village police forces. Why should we do anything for them if they do nothing for us?"

February Frigid.. Doesn't Surprise Us

KINGSTON—What everyone already knew was confirmed by the monthly weather summary compiled by City Engineer T.J. Wickman's office. It was colder this February than it was last February.

The lowest temperature recorded for last February was zero degrees on Feb. 7. This February the low temperature of the month was recorded on the 8th at minus four degrees. The average low temperature for the month this year was more than five degrees less than last year; 13.96 degrees in 1977, 19.59 degrees in 1976.

The highest temperature recorded this Feb was 52 degrees on Feb. 27, compared to last year's high of 66 degrees on Feb. 25. The average high temperature for this February was 35.54 degrees, more than eight degrees colder than last year.

Although 17 of February's 28 days were described as clear or mostly clear this February and only 16 last year, the total amount of snowfall in Kingston more than doubled from 1976 to 1977. The total accumulation for this February was 12 an one-half inches. Last year the city received only five inches in February.

The largest snowfall of the month occurred Sunday, Feb. 20, when eight inches fell. It snowed for a total of six days this February, the same as last year.

Humidity highs of 100 per cent were recorded on two days during the month ,on Feb. 11 and 13. The low of 40 per cent was reached on Feb. 28.

Barometric pressure reached its low point of 29.30 on Feb. 5 and its high of 30.35 on Feb. 8. Both figures were less extreme than last year.

Dutchess Bridge Shows the Way

POUGHKEEPSIE-The Mid-Hudson Bridge in Poughkeepsie showed the greatest increase in traffic figures for February, according to Milton Zwickel, chairman of the New York State Bridge Authority, in a traffic and revenue report for the authority's five bridges which include the Mid-Hudson, the Rip Van Winkle, the Kingston-Rhinecliff, Bear Mountain and Newburgh-Beacon spans.

The total revenue on the five bridges for the month was $494,884, which represents an $11,259 increase, or 2.33 per cent, over the same period last year. The Newburgh-Beacon Bridge reported the highest revenue increase. Increased traffic was reflected in a revenue increase of $8,478, up 3.56 per cent. The Rip Van Winkle Bridge reported the only decrease, $1,343, a 3 12 per cent decrease.

NEW PALTZ NEWS

Officials Now Disagree On Why Housing Sought

By LYNN GOLDENBERG
Correspondent

NEW PALTZ — Village officials seem to disagree on whether the Village of New Paltz really wants new housing for the elderly or is using the proposed housing project to try to get federal money for new parking.

Village planning consultant Ralph Seligman says the housing plan was included in a pre-application for funds from the Department of Housing and Urban Development in a last-minute effort to make the pre-application more attractive to the agency.

"Parking is the top priority," Seligman said. "The housing would only use a steep bank on the proposed site which is not suitable for parking."

Mayor John G. Vett disagrees. "The pre-application was for a senior citizen housing site, and not essentially for parking."

He said "using" the housing project to get parking would be "misleading HUD."

The mayor added that he felt there is enough parking in the village, but it is not being used to best advantage.

On the basis of the pre-application, HUD recently invited the village to make full application for $150,000 for "site acquisition and development for senior citizen housing and parking," an item included on the pre-application at the last moment by Vett.

Vett's inclusion of the housing site on the village's $300,000 request to HUD led to a storm of controversy and a public apology by the mayor for acting without consulting the board of trustees.

Vett received an urgent phone call from Seligman Jan. 4, three days before the pre-application deadline, after Seligman and his partner, John Lange, met with HUD representative David Early in New York.

Seligman said Early indicated the pre-application would have little chance of approval as it was. He claims Early showed him a "more specific" set of judging criteria than was originally available. In addition, Seligman said, he was told HUD would want to see some indication of progress toward the development of housing for the poor.

Lange came to New Paltz the next day and met with Vett. Vett said he was told the priorities and allocations approved by the board would have to be changed.

Vett said they then met with Jedd Reisner, a local architect interested in senior citizen housing, and that Reisner drew up some plans for Lange to take with him.

The mayor also changed the original request to make "site acquisition and development" for senior citizen housing and parking the No. 1 item on the pre-application at $170,000.

The board had made sewer replacement the top priority at $105,000.

Vett also agreed to commit up to $30,000 in matching village funds as a "good faith" gesture on the advice of Lange.

The pre-application, as altered by Vett, was submitted Jan. 7, along with a sworn statement saying the required public hearings had been held. The housing project was not mentioned at either of the two public hearings.

The mayor formally apologized two weeks later for taking the actions without consulting the board.

"In the heat of battle I shot from the hip, and for this I apologize to each one of you," he said in a letter to board members. "I will certainly do my best to see that nothing like this happens in the future."

But the mayor's apology was not enough to satisfy Trustee George Ackert, the only trustee to vote against the mayor's changes at the Jan. 31 board meeting.

"I'm not against senior citizen housing," Ackert said, "but I'm against the proposed site."

Many local senior citizens disapproved of the mayor's actions and questioned both the need for such housing and the proposed site, adjacent to the village hall.

Mavis Taylor, president of the New Paltz-Gardiner Senior Citizens Club, led a vocal, angry delegation at a recent board meeting.

"I wouldn't live in a place like that," she said. Local senior citizens do not need additional housing anyway, she said, implying the housing project was being railroaded through.

"It was not an attempt to railroad housing," said Seligman recently. "It was an attempt to get our No. 1 priority, which is parking for downtown."

Seligman and Vett both noted that the proposed site is not binding.

While the request for aid for sewers is out under this application, a hearing must now be filed on the housing issue before the final application can be filed with HUD. No hearing date has been set.

sale of a controlled substance in the second and third degrees, relative to a previous sale of cocaine to police agents.

Arrested along with Golsoski yesterday was 20 year old Robbie Jean Jones of Woodstock. Ms. Jones was charged with possession of a controlled substance in the seventh degree: marijuana. She was issued an appearance ticket for a later date in the Town of Ulster Court.

Golgoski, who was indicted by an Ulster County Grand Jury last September as part of a local burglary ring, was arraigned before Town of Ulster Justice John Gotelli and remanded to the Ulster County Jail.

national attention as a "grassroots" artist.

Schmidt had become a favorite patient at Hadler's, where his upstairs room was literally wallpapered with photographs of himself and his works.

He wasn't told until Tuesday that he would have to be moved. Also caught by surprise were friends and relatives in Woodstock, many of whom won't be able to visit Schmidt as often in Catskill.

Another patient, a 95-year-old woman forced to transfer to the Ulster County Infirmary, told Mrs. Coons the authorities were "sending me away to die."

As Schmidt walked slowly down the front steps for the last time, a nurse on the porch said, "That's what happens when the government takes over."

•RICHTER

Malanios's alleged reputation as a troublemaker at Ulster County Jail was alluded to by defense counsel Charles Gaffney of Kingston, representing Richter. Gaffney also alluded to Sheriff Deputy Sgt. John A. Tuey's reportedly telling the Ulster County Jail Warden that Malanios had threatened Richter and his family.

When Malanios protested the consecutive sentence, Traficante testified, Richter came from behind his desk, approached Malanios within six inches and told him he was getting off "getting off easy" because manslaughter charges against him had been dropped.

The manslaughter charges arose out of a fist fight Malanios engaged in with a friend, Peter Cawley. Malanious left the bloody scene, sent a friend back to bandage Cawley and then discovered several days later that Cawley had died, Traficante says. Subsequent investigation showed he died of a drug overdose.

Traficante testified that Richter told Malanios, "I think you murdered him (Cawley), you stuck a needle in his arm."

Malanios and Silva also accused Richter of implying that Malanios "went back and shot Cawley with an overdose."

On cross examination, Richter's attorney pictured the trio as troublemakers at the jail whom jail personnel were anxious to send on their way to state prison. He told of an attempted escape made by Malanios, Traficante and Silva, and asked if Malanios had ever made threats against Warden Willard Bound.

Admitting he threatened the warden, Malanios said it was because of "torture, pain and stress" Bound imposed on prisoners. He also admitted to hitting a deputy with a broken piece of porcelain. He, Traficante and Silva steadfastly maintained that no threats were made against Richter.

Deputy Sheriff Timothy McGuire, testifying for the commission, recalled that Judge Richter had indicated Malanios's sentence would run concurrently. Gaffney asked why he refused to talk with Richter when the judge attempted to meet with him last week concerning the case.

"I told him, I had nothing to say," the deputy replied, explaining that he did not wish to discuss the case outside the courtroom while the case was pending.

Today's witnesses scheduled to appear in the White Plains Court House include John Schiskie, who once appeared before Richter and later charged the judge with physical abuse in city court.

Schiskie's action led to the "admonishment" of Richter in June of 1975 by the State Judical Conference which said he used "poor judgement" in an argument with Schiskie.

Kingston City Police Officers James Wallace and William Becker are also scheduled to testify. So is a character witness for Richter, whom the judge refused to name Wednesday.

Testimony is expected at future hearings from Ulster County lawyers Steven Rothenberg and former assistant district attorney John Modjeska.

Supreme Court Justice Frank Pino is presiding and Frank Finnerty is staff counsel for the commission.

Richter has been accused of four counts of misconduct, including the incident with Malanios. He is also charged with lying to the commission about the Malanios incident and with numerous instances of setting illegal and improper sentencing conditions.

• CHILDREN

According to reports, Mrs. Edwards had abandoned the children once before in a restaurant.

Mrs. Edwards, who with her husband and family lived with the Ouellettes in Port Ewen until 1975, had been staying the last several months with only the children at a Palisades Avenue rooming house in Jersey City.

Deputies twice were unable to find her at the rooming house, and she was found in the hospital by an Ulster County welfare investigator after the drug overdose.

Deputies didn't know what kind of drugs she had taken. A report that she also had tried to slash one of her wrists was unfounded, they said.

Mrs. Edwards waived extradition proceedings earlier Wednesday in New Jersey before Hudson County Superior Court Judge Joseph Hanrahan, who ordered her returned to New York on a fugitive warrant.

She had undergone a preliminary psychiatric examination at Trenton State Hospital.

She arrived at Ulster County Jail at about 1:30 p.m., dressed in blue jeans and a dark blue coat that partially hid the handcuffs on her wrist. She spoke only once, warning a news photographer pushing in for a closeup to "get out of my way or I'll kick you."

Judge Jordan had to explain twice to Mrs. Edwards about her legal rights. Although she said she was "going to work," she could list no savings or assets. The judge appointed Kingston attorney John E. Modjeska as her counsel.

Authorities at the jail said Mrs. Edwards was talkative and "more cheerful" this morning.

• MUSLIMS

seized buildings.

A small army of policemen in flak jackets, carrying rifles, closed off stretches of Pennsylvania Avenue — "The Avenue of Presidents" and Massachusetts Avenue — Embassy Row.

Khaalis demanded an opportunity to impose retribution against his Black Muslim religious enemies who are serving life sentences for executing two women and drowning five children in a mass slaying in 1973. Khaalis was the father of four of the children.

He insisted the five convicts appear before him.

"I want to see how tough they are," he said.

He called for the delivery of black heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali and Wallace Muhammad, spiritual leader of the Black Muslims, so they could confess to distorting the word of Allah.

But he fixed no timetable.

President Carter kept publicly silent but directed Attorney General Griffin Bell and FBI Director Clarence Kelley to help District police deal with the siege. After visiting police headquarters, Bell briefed presidential aides Hamilton Jordan and Robert Lipschutz.

While Khaalis' troops were invading the buildings, Carter, as he had promised, telephoned and spoke briefly with Cory Moore in Ohio after Moore released a police captain he held captive for 44 hours.

Carter acknowledged the call set a precedent that worried him. The Ohio episode was the latest in a string of such seizures.

Security around the White House and Congress was immediately intensified. Police with guard dogs patrolled outside the White House.

Police sealed major streets in Washington, causing a five-mile backup on several bridges leading to the city.

The assault began shortly after 11 a.m. Wednesday when Hanafi Muslims armed with guns and machetes burst into first floor offices of the B'nai B'rith National Headquarters.

Steve Widdes, 26, was pistolwhipped. Wesley Hymes, 31, was shot in the arm and slashed with a machete on his left hand. Alton Kirkland, 21, was stabbed in the chest and back. Brian Galliday, 33, was kicked in the back. Michael Smith, 36, was hit on the head.

"Up against the wall, or I'll blow your head off," one Muslim shouted.

The siege had begun.

The next attack came almost two hours later at the Islamic Mosque on Massachusetts Avenue, 10 blocks away. Apparently no one was hurt. There were one or two gunmen and 10 to 15 hostages, apparently including Dr. Muhammed Abdul Rauf, mosque director, and his wife.

About 2 p.m. the District Building — Washington's City Hall —was the final target. There were at least two gunmen.

B'nai B'rith is six blocks from the White House. The District Building can be seen from President Carter's private quarters upstairs. The mosque is in the posh Embassy Row area, about half a mile from Vice President Walter Mondale's residence.

Floor by floor, harvesting hostages, the gunmen swept through the B'nai B'rith building. They sprayed brown paint over the windows, but occasionally a man carrying a gun could be seen.

A hostage named Betty managed to call a reporter and say she was all right, had not been harmed, had not been threatened.

At the mosque, a group of 16 foreign students from Boston and Temple Universities had just arrived for a tour.

One of the students and a guide went into the office looking for someone to take them through the mosque. They ran into a gunman and were captured — along with about 10 to 15 workers in the office.

A mailman and the bus driver saw the commotion and got out in time.

At the District Building the scene was bloody.

Steve Colter, reporter for a local black newspaper, and his friend, Maurice Williams, reporter for Howard University radio station WHUR, had just returned from lunch and were stepping off an elevator on the fifth floor.

Councilman Marion Barry was walking down the hall. So was Mack Wesley Cantrell, 51, a guard.

Near the end of the hall, two security men opened a door. A lone man inside whirled around and fired one shot.

Williams collapsed, mortally wounded. A second shot hit Cantrell in the head, seriously wounding him.

"Then I heard a third shot, and I knew I'd been hit," Barry said. He clutched his chest and stumbled into the City Council Chambers.

He is in fair condition, after surgery. The bullet just missed his heart.

Robert Pierce, 51, a law student, is in critical condition with multiple gunshot wounds. None of the witnesses saw that shooting.

When the gunmen left the elevator a few minutes earlier, they made a fateful decision. They went to the west end of the building and the office of City Council President Stirling Tucker, who was away from his desk.

Had they had turned in the other direction, gone to the East end, they would have walked into the office of Mayor Walter Washington and had a prime hostage.

Washington and 20 aides barricaded themselves in the office for several hours before being freed by police.

Police surrounded the three buildings. Rush hour traffic was chaos. Ambulances carried the wounded to hospitals. Relatives arrived to wait out the night behind police lines.

Shots rang out from the District Building. Windows shattered. Police said they were not returning the fire.

From the time of the takeover until late evening the situation drifted into a standoff.

— Another wounded victim was released by the gunmen in the district building. Police could see at least seven hostages, tied up, in chairs and on the floor of Tucker's office.

Romania Appeals To U.S., Others

BUCHAREST, Romania (UPI) — President Nicolae Ceausescu said today the earthquake that devastated Romania will not slow the nation's economic growth and appealed to the United States and the rest of the world for help in making up $1 billion in damage.

But he dismissed as a "supposition" a warning by American scientists that a second powerful quake might strike soon, apparently in an effort to head off possible panic.

Ceausescu told a 70-minute news conference in the old royal palace that he was postponing for one year a planned reduction of the work week from 48 to 42 hours but making no other policy changes.

"We are determined to change nothing in our development program," he said. "I am convinced we can overcome our difficulties and fulfill our economic and social plans.

"Not only is the (five-year) plan certainly not going to be affected but the living standards will increase even more. This is our challenge.

"We are expecting very much from the labor of the Romanian people."

Nuclear Forum Friday

Nuclear power has become a prime concern of Ulster County residents. If plans of the New York State Power Authority for Cementon and Con Ed for Lloyd are carried out, our county will become the focal point of largest concentration of nuclear generating facilities in the world.

Even if the nuclear plans are scrapped, we are almost certain to be a prime site for power plants of some kind. The Hudson's vast water supplies and our handiness to several large metropolitan areas make the Mid-Hudson Valley a natural site.

Either way the impact will be considerable. Discounting the safety and waste disposal questions, which are national rather than regional concerns, the plants will change the local environment and the economy.

If all the plants are built they will evaporate in the neighborhood of 100 million gallons of Hudson River water a day for cooling. Their cooling towers will be the highest manmade structures in the valley. Their construction will bring in thousands of laborers. Their effect on local tax structures will be enormous.

Controversy over these plants will be with us for at least the next decade. It will be a frustrating time for everyone with a serious concern over nuclear power because local residents will have very little to say, in the end, about the outcome. Frustration will lead to emotionalism and hardened positions on both sides, and an accompanying dearth of sober facts to deal with.

Nevertheless some honest efforts illuminate the issues are being made. Tomorrow night perhaps the best-informed panel of experts on both sides ever gathered in Ulster County will meet publicly at the George Washington School in Kingston to answer questions from local citizens.

The 7:30 p.m. forum, sponsored by the Ulster County Legislature, Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey and U.S. Reps. Hamilton Fish and Matthew McHugh, may be one of the best opportunities Ulster county citizens will have to find out more about nuclear power.

We hope there's standing room only.

Citizens Have Right to Ask

Dear Editor:

I was shocked to read that Mr. Feraca Jr. objected to a citizen's questioning the wisdom of a decision made by the Kingston School Board. (Freeman, March 4). One of the greatest freedoms in a democracy is the right of the people to question the wisdom of decisions made by elected officials up to and including the President.

I can only hope that the statement was made in the heat of a debate and does not truly represent Mr. Feraca's feelings on this subject.

Vet Calls for Viet Pardons

Dear Editor:

Regarding the letter printed in your newspaper of Feb. 28 which referred to the pardoning of draft evaders, addressed to President Carter from the American Legion of Wallkill: Once again the American Legion pretends to be speaking for all veterans. A distinct minority of veterans belong to this self-applauding organization.

As a veteran, I propose that President Carter pardon the Americans who started and led this war as well as those who encouraged its continuance, such as the American Legion and their ilk.

Can't Understand Verdict

Dear Editor:

I have tried to understand the decision handed down by Judge Hyman Mass (clearing the nun accused of killing her baby) but to no avail.

I am not a Catholic, yet I do not believe in abortion. I am not a Catholic, and I too, do not believe in murder.

The Catholic Church, it's teachings and the clergy thereof are adamant on this subject. Then how in God's name can anyone declare this woman Sister Maureen Murphy innocent?

Does anyone believe she experienced a holy visitation therefore impregnating her?

I am sickened by this entire situation. That this woman claimed not to know she was pregnant is the biggest bunch of hogwash I've ever read! Certainly a woman of 37 is aware of a sexual encounter, and (in her case) the subsequent birth of a child.

Was the guilt for of this encounter that great that the act of murder became secondary in her mind?

It would seem to me, that the planting of such seeds of guilt, should be put in their proper place, for the greatest sin is to take the life of another!

How can her sisters accept this act with such equanimity??

My God, what has become of justice? If some poor destitute, unmarried woman had committed the same heinous crime she would have been incarcerated post haste and in my mind rightly so ... but this nun walks free and that poor innocent baby is dead.

Ihe only consolation I have is that she, and the others of her ilk, who were and still are aware of this sickening act of infanticide will have to answer to the greatest Judge one day. and pray, will someone tell me ... how in Hell is this any differecnt from abortion?

Dear Editor:

The following is a copy of a letter sent to Warren Anderson, Senate Majority Leader in the State Capital. I urge anyone who feels the same to write him also.

Dear Sir:

I am writing to urge your support for the marijuana reform bill now being considered by the legislature. I am 30 years old and have been using marijuana for almost 10 years. I have never missed voting and am extremely concerned about the state of this country and New York in particular.

In the last 10 years I have seen families torn apart, people lose hard-to-come-by jobs, friends do time, and battle lines drawn all over the issue of a marijuana smoking. This strikes me as absurd. I consider myself an intelligent, responsible adult, not a dope-crazed criminal as I am now classed by the state.

Being a native New Yorker I always felt my state was the most progressive, ahead of the times. I now know I was sadly mistaken.

At least six states have the reality of marijuana reform, while New York hems and haws. I urge you to use all your influence to correct this situation as soon as possible.

Carter Discovers Human Rights

LONDON— Mr. Carter's references to human rights are causing quite a commotion in these parts. It is not really expected, by working statesmen, that anything more will be done about human rights than to mention them genially from time to time. Sir Alec Home, who was keynoter at the Helsinki Conference that eventually brought forth the Declaration, stressed in 1972 that this time around the west would not settle for mere talk.

That is the diplomatic way of saying, "this time around the west will again settle for mere talk." It is the diplomatic equivalent of the vernacular use of the word "literally." "Literally" is used to mean "not-literally": as in, I called you literally a hundred times over the weekend."

When on a subsequent occasion after it became quite clear that the Soviet Union was not intending to do anything about human rights Sir Alec was asked what the west was going to do about it, he said, literally, nothing. That seems to be the preferred way of doing things about human rights, where the Soviet Union is concerned. Ask anyone who has labored in the United Nations on the subject of human rights. He, I mean he or she, will tell you.

That is why Mr. Carter's behavior, which one would not really have thought so extraordinary, is causing such upheavals here. President Giscard d'Estaing is positively truculent on the subject. Human rights, he passed the word to the noble Amalrik who sought vainly to interview him, are not to be discussed with mere Soviet martyrs. They are to be negotiated through channels, which is the same institution through which we negotiated the fate of Eastern Europe. Chancellor Schmidt of Germany has flatly refused to see Amalrik, consigning him to as subordinate a secretary in the foreign affairs department as he could find.

Another interesting argument has been raised against Mr. Carter's behavior, this time from the right. Mr. Worsthorne of the Daily Telegraph, who specializes in saying interesting things, makes this point. America is way behind in the business of keeping up militarily with the Soviet Union. And the only reason we exert ourselves as we do is that we sense how awful Soviet life is. Now, if we continue to put pressure on the Soviet Union, what is likely to happen is that the Russians will give free speech to all of the 200 Russians who desire it, then will smile toothily at us, and we will fall over ourselves with appreciation, disbanding the army, the navy, the air force, and the boy scouts.

There is a subtle point here. It is related to our current eagerness to make love, not war, with Vietnam. All Vietnam has to do is allow three Red Cross workers into the country to prove Vietnam is not holding 800 Americans Missing In Action. Even if it transpired that the reason they are not being detained is that they were all tortured to death, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee would hail this act of creative statesmanship as reason to proceed to recognize — or, as we put it these days, "normalize" —relations with Vietnam. It is true that if Bukovsky were given tenure at the University of Moscow, half the eastern liberal establishment would announce that the world crisis is over.

What actually has President Carter done? And how can the Soviet Union respond?

Mr. Carter has with utter dignity done just a little more than talk abstractly about human rights. He has recognized the existence of real heroes, genuine victims of systematic persecution. He has mentioned a few by name. He has, albeit as discreetly as if he had arranged to see a peep-show, act ually visited with one. In terms of policy, he has used no sanctions against the Soviet Union —only against relatively impotent Latin American nations. In the course of doing so — of ruling, e.g., against Uruguay but not against the Philippines — Carter stressed quite candidly the necessity of superordinating the national interest. Translated, that means the Philippines can hit back at us, Uruguay can't.

The Soviet Union would not be motivated to strike or not to strike by our behavior toward the Bukovskys. But a crystallization of world opinion against the tormentors of the Bukovskys is something the Soviet Union clearly does not want — and may not be able to afford. In a melancholy way, the European statesmen here make a certain amount of sense. Are we willing to see through to the implications of our challenge to the Soviet Union to civilize itself? It means, among other things, giving them no acceptable alternative. And that means rearmament, and all those grim and c ostly things.

Separate Checks, Please

WASHINGTON—President Carter was asked many questions at his call-in last Saturday. The one that fascinated me the most was when a young man asked why the President's son Chip and Chip's wife and their son were living in the White House on the taxpayers' money.

The President responded by saying, in part, "Well, I think you ought to know that all personal expenses of our family are paid out of my pocket or the pocket of my children. Our food is kept separate; we pay for all of it. All our clothes and so forth are paid for out of our own pocket...."

Had I been the questioner I would have followed up with "Mr. President, how do you keep track of what each person eats?" Since I couldn't, I'm going to speculate on what might take place at a Carter family dinner.

They've just finished eating and the President takes out a yellow pad and pencil. "All right, now, let's see what everyone ate. Chip, what did you have?"

"I had tomato soup, fried chicken, mashed potatoes, cole slaw and cherry pie."

"Didn't I see you drink a glass of milk?" the President asks.

"I forgot about the milk," Chip says.

"I'll bet," Amy says mischievously.

"Pa, she's picking on me again," Chip says.

"Hush, Amy," Rosalynn Carter says. "Your Daddy's trying to figure out the check."

The President says, "Did Caron have the same?"

"I had a hot roll," Caron replies.

The President says, "The hot roll comes with the meal. Now, Ma, what did you have?"

Miss Lillian says, "I thought I was invited here for dinner."

"I'm sorry, Ma, everybody has to pay for their own food at the White House."

"Well, you know I don't like chicken, so I had some broiled trout."

The President looks up the price of trout on the engraved White House menu and writes it down.

"Grandma had cottage cheese, too, " Amy says.

"But I didn't have soup," Miss Lillian says. "You're not going to charge me for the soup and the cottage cheese."

"No, you can have one or the other."

"In most restaurants the cottage cheese is free," Miss Lillian says.

"She's right, Jimmy," Rosalynn says. "I was at the Women's Democratic Club yesterday and the cottage cheese came with the meal."

"All right," the President says, crossing out the cottage cheese. "Rosalynn, you had the chicken didn't you?"

"Yes, Jimmy, and a salad."

"What kind of dressing?" the President asks.

"Does it make any difference?"

"I suppose not, but if we get audited by the GSA I want the records straight. All right, Billy, what did you have for dinner?"

"Two beers," Billy says.

"He did not," Amy says. "He had four beers. One, two, three, four!"

"I brought two of them with me," Billy says. "Besides, I didn't eat anything. I don't see why I should be charged for dinner when I just drunk beer."

"The food was prepared for you," the President says. "We have to pay for it whether you ate it or not."

"If I had known I would have to pay for dinner," says Billy, "I would have gone to a bar."

"How much do I owe?" Amy asks.

"We'll pay for you," the President says. "Well, let's see—it seems to add up just right. Wait a minute. I seem to be short 20 cents."

Amy says, "You forgot the baby's warm milk."

"That's it. I forgot the baby!" the President says. "Does anyone want more coffee?"

Miss Lillian says, "No, thanks. On my Social Security I can't afford it."

Daisy Chain Jacks up Oil Prices

WASHINGTON— That increasingly precious fuel, petroleum, often lubricates a lot of greedy hands before it trickles down to the consumer.

A favorite scheme is for the oil to be sold back and forth between middlemen, each jacking up the price before it finally reaches the people who burn it. After each conspirator in this "daisy chain" siphons off a profit, the inflated price is passed on to the consumers.

Buried in the files of the Federal Energy Administration is evidence that consumers were ripped off in this fashion for tens of millions of dollars during the Arab oil embargo of 1973-74. Yet despite overwhelming evidence in several cases, the agency has taken no action against the conspirators.

"The level of white collar crime involved in this price gouging could be substantial," warns a confidential memo from the House Energy subcommittee to its chairman, Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich.

"Not only is criminal activity going unprosecuted, but it is enormously rewarding."

In just one case, according to internal government documents, Florida consumers were overcharged at least $3.7 million. A startling $2 million of this "was paid in inducements and commissions to a single individual."

The recipient of this staggering sum was Ray Granlund, a paid consultant for both Florida Power and its fuel oil supplier, Signal Oil and Gas. Instead of having Signal sell its oil directly to Florida Power, Granlund arranged to route it through two other companies.

One firm, Larcon Petroleum of Houston, bought the fuel from Signal for 22 to 32 cents a gallon. Larcon then turned around and charged Florida as much as 54 cents a gallon. From June 1973 to October 1974, 53 million gallons of oil were sold in this fashion. Larcon was involved in 33 separate transactions.

A second firm, Matrix Properties of Houston, was involved in six of the deals. Investigators say Matrix, a real estate holding company, was "a convenient dummy corporation" to which the fuel was sold.

The enterprising Granlund, it turned out, was pulling the purse strings on both sides of the deal. He not only was a consultant to Signal and Florida Power, but he also had a close relationship with both Larcon and Matrix, our sources say. After the smoke had cleared from the deal, Garlund wound up with $1.5 millior from Larcon and another $452,61 from Matrix in commissions.

"On paper, each transaction looks perfectly legal," one investigator told our associate Howie Kurtz. "But once you pierce the corporate veil, you see that the oil didn't really go anywhere. They were just walking the price up so Granlund could make a killing."

There is no question that the Federal Energy Administration has the evidence. An internal document concluded: "There had to be collusion between several firms and individuals... By routing the fuel through Larcon and Matrix, Granlund was personally enriched, apparently at the expense of the customers of Florida Power Corporation." Price hikes of at least $3.7 million were passed on to Florida electricity users.

There were other "daisy chain" operations in other states, yet the energy agency took no action against the offenders. Our sources say energy officials in Dallas and Washington simply were not interested in prosecuting these consumer rip-offs.

The daisy chains don't work as well when oil in plentiful, but when supplies again become tight, the wheelers and dealers will be drawn to the oil like moths to a lightbulb.

Footnote: Granlund conceded getting $2 million in commissions' but wouldn't comment directly on the transactions. "Whatever I did was perfectly legal, honorable and aboveboard," he told us. A spokesman said Florida Power did not know Granlund was earning commissions from the other companies. A Larcon spokesman admitted paying commissions to Granlund; Matrix did not return our phone calls. A spokesman admitted that the FEA has been lax in handling criminal cases in the past, but said the case is now under active inyestigation and will be referred to the Justice Dept. for prosecutuion.

DEATH LIST: We recently called attention to a "death list" of imprisoned Argentinians, most of them people of prominence, who reportedly are marked for execution. The Argentine embassy hastily assured us several of the prisoners "have been released."

But the State Dept., which learned of the Argentine government's message to us, warned us in a straightforward note: "In practice, this has not meant necessarily that individuals have regained their liberty, because in some cases there reportedly are pending civil or criminal charges.

"In other cases, the individual who was 'released by the executive' does not reappear." In other words, he is still being held, or has been killed, despite official reassurance.

Start by Knowing What You Want

By MIKE ROTHENBERGER
Dale Carnegie Associates

There is an interesting story of the old sage who lived on the side of a mountain near a lake. It was common practice for the people of the village below to come to him for counseling and advice. The wise old man spent many hours sitting out in front of his small cabin where he rocked to and fro in a crude little rocking chair made of the branches of the surrounding trees. Hour after hour he sat and rocked as he reflected.

One day he noticed a young lad walking up the path past the lake toward his cabin. The boy walked up the hill and stood erect before the sage.

The old man said, "What can I do for you young man?"

The boy replied, "I am told by the people in the village that you are very wise. They say that you can give me the secret of happiness and success in life."

The old sage listened intently and then cast his gaze at the ground for several moments. He silently rocked to and fro. Not a sound was heard except the creaking of the crude rocking chair. Then, the sage rose to his feet, took the boy by the hand and led him down the path toward the lake. Not a word was spoken. The boy was bewildered, but the old man kept walking. They came to the edge of the lake but did not stop. Out into the water the old man led the boy. The water came to the boy's knees, to his waist, then to his chin, but the old sage kept walking.

The lad was completely submerged in the water. The sage stopped for a moment, then turned the boy around and led him out of the lake and up the path to the cabin. Still not a word was spoken. The wise old man sat again in his creaky chair and silently rocked to and fro. After several moments he looked into the boy's questioning eyes, and asked, "Young man, when you were out in that lake, under water, what was it you wanted more than anything else in life?"

Quickly the boy replied, "Why, sir, I wanted a breath of air more than anything." Then from the wise old man came these words of wisdom, "My lad, when you want happiness and when you want success in life as much as you wanted the breath of air, you will have found the secret."

And so it is. So many people are dissatisfied with their present status in life. They wish for something better. They dream of the day when things will be just right, but they only wish and dream. They don't resolve, and plan, and act. So many people don't know what it is that they really want. Befoe we can succeed we must define our goals. We must know specifically what we want from life, then we must want it enough that we will be motivated to formulate a plan that will enable us to achieve it. We must want it enough that we will diligently follow the plan, step by step, every day. When our goals and our plans become a living picture of reality in our minds, a picture that will motivate us to determined action, only then can we expect to find the happiness and success to fulfill our dreams. As the poet so aptly wrote:

I bargained with Life for a penny
and Life would pay no more,
However I begged at evening
When I counted my scanty store.
For Life is a just employer,
He gives you what you ask,
But once you have set the wage,
Why you must bear the task.
I worked for a menial's hire,
only to learn, dismayed,
That any wage I had asked of Life
Life would have willingly paid.

Fish Sr. Thinks Liberty Will Prevail

Dear Editor:

The Soviet Union recently replied through the Pravda against the American protest regarding the harassment of the human rights of dissidents in the Soviet Union. The Communist newspaper Pravda, the main purveyor of Communist propaganda throughout the world, denounced our State Department's concern about the observance of human rights in the Soviet Union.

This was typical of the consistent policies of the Soviet press. For many years the Pravda has been hurling paper bombs at our form of government by the consent of the governed and depicting the United States as an evil, imperialist nation — totally false and without any foundation.

The existing Communist regime, under a monolithic, tyrannical dictatroship, is the enemy of free speech, free press, freedom of religion and of travel. The Communist Pravda continues to hide behind a false cloak of Socialism and also of a so-called republic. Actually the Soviet Union is a repudiation, denial, and negation of both.

What the rights activists and other dissidents in the Soviet Union are seeking is precisely what the Socialists in every nation favor — free speech, free press, free elections, civil and human rights and freedom from terrorism and absolutism. This is the creed of all Socialists everywhere. It is also the recent political creed of the powerful Italian and French Communist parties.

The people in the captive nations and even in Russia, are merely asking for the same rights now advocated by the Socialists and most European Communist parties. They are the same rights urged by the former Communist Prime Minister Dubeck, ten years ago in Czechoslovakia. The dissidents in Russia are not a handful of renegades, but a rapidly growing number of fearless spokesmen for human rights in Russia and the captive nations.

The defection of the European Communist parties, not the belated protests of the UNited States, has opened the eyes, minds and hearts of the Russian people. No Iron Curtain nor the violence of the secret police, the KGB, can stop the tide of freedom from sweeping away the false Soviet gods of hypocrisy, hatred, terrorism and tyranny.

Former Chief Justice Earl Warren, at a Columbia Bicentennial meeting declared: "Liberty, not Communism is the most contagious force in the world. It, liberty (freedom) permeates the Iron Curtain. It will eventually abide everywhere. No people of any race will long remain slaves."

Where Does A Gorilla Sit?

Dear Editor:

Where does a 300 lb. gorilla sit? The same place PASNY and Con Ed site their nuclear power plants —anywhere they want. Yet our conservative county legislators say they oppose the Catskill Region Commission because we will lose home rule. Where is their concern for home rule when it comes to the siting of nukes? The conservative legislators are strangely silent — they haven't told us PASNY and Con Ed do not recognize municipal home rule or individual rights. Nor have they told Ulster Co. residents how many properties will be taken off the tax rolls to provide PASNY a path for their transmission lines for these power plants in a one half mile corridor from the Greene County line to Lloyd — thereby raising taxes again for the remaining property owners. In fact, the best home rule officials in Lloyd and Esopus can do is dust off a spot for the Con Ed gorilla to plunk itself.

Our problems are not confined by paper boundaries of towns and counties, they lap over. The impact of the Prattsville pumped storage project and Cementon nuclear plant will affect the health, property values, and social and economic life of all of Ulster County. And our problems are imported — as with the dumping of Poughkeepsie garbage in Ulster County and PCB's in the Hudson. Our conservative county and town officials have not told us that local landfills are to be used to dump the sludge form the power plants that are to be sited here. Mr. Ernest Gardner, as an employe of a utility should know these matters, and Chairman Gardner, as an employe of the taxpayers of Ulster County, has a duty to inform the residents of Ulster County about them.

Dunbar Was Misquoted In Monell's Letter

Dear Editor:

I do not appreciate being quoted inaccurately by Mr. and Mrs. Monell in their letter to the editor of March 1 in such a way to seem to associate me with them in their quarrel with the Town of Marbletown.

The facts of the case are very clear. The Monells started their feud by defying the Zoning Ordinance. They then initiated a suit against the town, which they lost; they appealed and lost. It seems to me that these court actions (defended of course at the taxpayers' expense) proved to any reasonable person's satisfaction that the administration of the Zoning Ordinance and its enforcement were well handled by the Zoning Board of Appeals, the Zoning Inspector and the Town Board.

There has been agitation in Marbletown to revise the Zoning Ordinance, inspired largely by those townspeople who wish to see it watered down. It should be pointed out that there is a substantial body of opinion which holds that it should be made more restrictive instead of less so.

In any case, the Ordinance as it stands is at present THE LAW, which should command the respect of all of us. If it needs to be revised, there are provisions for doing so —which do not include flouting it.

Rescind Sales Tax Hike

Dear Editor:

In view of the fact that, without so much as a how do you do to those paying the bill, our legislature managed to impose a 2 per cent increase in the sales tax, effective March 1, and then announced with smiles, no less, that $2 million had been found lying around somewhere on March 3. This just happens to be enough to balance the budget less about $65,000.

I believe the increase should be rescinded no later than April 1 and that the $65,000 be made up by reducing their salaries, appropriately.

Historians would be delighted to make room for men such as these.

Saugerties Cross-Connections Suspect

Water Contamination Combated

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA
Freeman staff

SAUGERTIES — Citing possible contamination of the village water supply, the local plumbing board has strongly urged the village board to eliminate cross-connections in water hookups involving the new sewage treatment plant.

Plumbing trustees want action to assure that no cross-connections are used in the contemplated water hookups of those Route 212 and Glasco residents now supplied by the village.

The village is currently investigating how township water and sewage lines will be hooked up after the wastewater facilities project now in progress is completed. The plumbing board, fearing contamination and board of health problems, has recommended that the mayor and trustees "ensure the nonexistence of cross connections" in water hookups in the two areas.

That recommendation is one of five suggestions just submitted by the plumbing agency to the board. Mayor Erika Hinchey said the board will act on the recommendations in regular session March 21. She noted some of the recommendations require a public hearing. Plumbing Board Member Robert Rightmyer said he hoped for quick and definitive action because of health department concerns and regulations.

Rightmyer's group also asked the board to reconsider the elimination of one section of the village plumbing code pertaining to one-job permits.

The ordinance regulating plumbers and plumbing in the village is an eight-page document dating back to 1955. It requires all local plumbers to secure a license. A 1956 amendment, however, allows a master plumber of five years in any other community to secure a one-job permit for $50. In asking that the elimination of the amendment (Section 308) be reconsidered, plumbing trustees pointed out it gives the plumbing inspector limited control over the job.

Other suggestions included:

•The possibility of posting signs at village entrances, noting local ordinances that are enforced, or advising the public to "Check your local ordinances."

•Consideration of maintenance of water and sewer lines to the curb rather than to hookup, since some hookups are located on the opposite side of the street.

•Directing the village clerk to send out plumbing license renewal reminders, including the section of the code requiring the posting of a bond with the village.

Kingston District Schools List Kindergarten Registration Dates

KINGSTON—The Kingston City Schools, Consolidated, will be registering kindergarten students for the 1977-78 school year according to the schedule listed.

To be eligible to register for kindergarten a child must be five years of age by Dec. 8, 1977. Parents are requested to bring birth certificates, or other evidence of date of birth, all immunization and health records, and the child who is to be registered, to the local school.

Any parent who cannot present a doctor's certificate that indicates that the child was vaccinated against poliomyelitis, regular measles, German measles (rubella), diptheria and mumps will be required to sign a form indicating that they understand their obligation to have their child immunized. A child will not be admitted in September without a certificate from a physician indicating satisfactory completion of the immunization requirements.

The Ulster County Health Dept. operates an immunization clinic on the third Friday of each month from 10 to 11 a.m. at the Tumor Clinic Building, 400 Broadway. However, parents are encouraged by the school district to have their family physician administer the immunizations.

If the family physician certifies that by a written statement that any of the immunizations may be detrimental to the child's health, such immunizations are not required.

A child who is not registered in the Spring and seeks kindergarten admission in September and who is not compulsory school age (six years of age) will not be admitted until immunization has been verified.

The Board of Education has recently adopted a policy providing a Pre-Kindergarten Screening Program to be conducted following registration. Parents are urged by the board to register their child for kindergarten so they may benefit from the screening program.

The registration schedule is as follows:

...And Saugerties Slates It, Too

SAUGERTIES — Registration for all children eligible to attend kindergarten next September in Saugerties Central Schools will be held March 28 through April 1. Parents are asked to obtain registration forms in any elementary school in advance.

Forms should be filled out at home and brought to a school during registration week to avoid delays in registering and allow time for health and immunization checks by doctors. Extreme cảre is urged in assuring that dates, phone numbers, addresses and nearest neighbor information is absolutely correct.

Parents should go to the school nearest their home to register children. Actual assignment to specific schools and classes will be made later.

To be eligible to attend kindergarten in the next school year, a child must become five years of age on or before Dec. 1, 1977. Birth certificates must be submitted at registration, as well as immunization certificates against rubella, mumps, diphtheria, measles and poliomyelitis. The only exemptions for the certificates are a doctor's statement that immunization has not been given for health reasons, or a written statement from parent or guardian that religious affiliation prohibits immunization.

Registration will be held in each school in the district March 28 through April 1 daily from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Shoot Out in Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — Three sharp blasts from a double-barreled shotgun Wednesday left two Syracuse men dead, two others wounded, and a fifth man in custody facing several charges.

Clifford M. Jacobs, 53, was to be arraigned today on charges of second-degree murder, first-degree manslaughter and two counts of first-degree assault in the deaths of Cubby Robinson, 28, and Kenneth Tarver, 36.

He also was accused of wounding Ferman Benning, 31, and Gary Batey, 23. Police said all four were from Syracuse and were friends of Jacobs, although an argument reportedly preceded the shootings.

Thomas Sardino, city police chief, declined to comment on a precise motive for the incident, but said that Jacobs had had previous contacts with the victims. "There had been arguments before," Onondaga County District Attorney John Cirando said.

Officials said Jacobs was leaving his home with the weapon and was standing on the front porch when police arrived. They said he dropped the loaded weapon and surrendered as they approached.

Sardino said the shootings occurred on Tallman Street in the city's south side after Jacobs drove up in his car, got out of the vehicle and immediately shot Robinson in the back. Robinson was pronounced dead at the scene.

Sardino said the suspect then shot Tarver in the heart, and a third shot struck Benning and Batey. Tarver was pronounced dead on arrival at the Upstate Medical Center, where the other two were listed in stable condition.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED INTRODUCTION OF TELEPHONE RATE SCHEDULES FOR DIAL PBX SERIES 600 TYPES 50, 52 and 54 SERVICE

Notice is hereby given that the Telephone Company has submitted to the Public Service Commission, with a proposed effective date of March 25, 1977, tariff amendments providing for the introduction of Dial PBX Series 600 Types 50, 52 and 54 Service.

DESCRIPTION OF SERVICE

The Dial PBX Series 600 Types 50, 52 and 54 Service is provided by the Dimension® 2000 PBX. The Dimension PBX is an electronic system using stored program control, a time division switching network and switched loop consoles. The system has a maximum capacity of 2000 lines and 350 trunks with up to 1000 optional Dimension Custom Telephone Service (DCTS) stations and any combination of Rotary dial or TOUCH-TONE for the remaining stations or station lines. The capacity of lines, trunks and DCTS stations depends on the subscriber's traffic requirements. The inherent flexibility of the system provides for comprehensive features to meet the needs of particular businesses and industries.

RATE STRUCTURE

The service is offered under 3 rate plans designated Types 50, 52 and 54. Under Types 50 and 52 Service, the monthly rates for the service consist of two parts, "A" and "B". The subscriber has the option of selecting "A" rate payment periods of 36, 60, 84, 120 or 144 months. The selected "A" rates are guaranteed against Company-initiated change. The "B" part of the monthly rates apply subject to change, from the date of installation. The service is designated Type 50 when the customer elects to pay an installation charge and Type 52 when the customer pays no installation charge. The monthly rates for Type 52 service are higher than the monthly rates for Type 50 service. As an option to paying the "A" portion of the charge over the selected payment period, the subscriber may elect to make a one-time payment.

Type 54 service is offered on the basis of standard monthly rates and installation charges, which are subject to change; a minimum charge of one month's rental plus the installation charge is applicable.

RATES AND CHARGES

The rates and charges are set forth in tariffs which are available for inspection at any office of the Telephone Company where business is transacted in person. The location of these offices can be found in the first pages of telephone directories. Tariffs are also available at the offices of the Public Service Commission. A list of the rates and charges will also be furnished to any person who requests it by writing to the following address:

Project Involves Area Colleges

SUC Paltz Seeks Grant

NEW PALTZ — The State University College at New Paltz will hold a news conference at 2 p.m. Tuesday to give details of a major grant it seeks from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

If the grant is awarded the college will share $277,000 with nine other private and public colleges in Ulster, Dutchess, Orange and Columbia counties.

Project coordinators from New Paltz and other schools are expected to be present for the news conference, which will be held in the seventh floor conference room of the administration building on the New Paltz campus.

Alan Herbert, director of college relations, said the news conference has another goal.

"Part of the final proposal," he said, "must include support from the public which is to be served by the project. The public will only learn about it from the media."

Herbert said the program to be funded by the grant promises to have significant on the area's economy, employment and social welfare.

Carey's Primary Veto the Reason County GOP Scratches Convention

KINGSTON — County Republicans have finally decided to give up the idea of holding an unofficial nominating convention this week and will now wait until the state legislature sets a new primary date before re-scheduling.

Last week Gov. High Carey vetoed a bill setting up a June primary election in order to give New York City political parties more time to decide who to nominate for mayor.

The date of a new primary will probably be sometime in August or September.

County GOP Chairman Kenneth Whispell said Wednesday that it would be difficult to estimate the effect the extra few months thinking time will have on potential candidates,. Many legislators, however, have expressed relief in not having to make a decision on running again for at least a few more months.

Whispell and the party's executive committee had been considering the possibility of holding the convention anyway, because of a previous GOP workshop for committeemen arranged with the state party and scheduled for early Saturday afternoon, before the nomination voting.

Saugerties Workshops Slated Short School Day Scheduled

SAUGERTIES — The junior-senior high and Mt. Marion Elementary schools in Saugerties will operate on an abbreviated schedule Tuesday, March 15. Schools will have a shortened schedule because of special teacher workshops.

Dismissal time for the junior-senior high will be 11:50 a.m. Mt. Marion's schedule will be: grades 1 to 6 — 9:20 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.; morning kindergarten session — 9:20 a.m. to 10:20 a.m.; afternoon kindergarten session — 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

Riccardi, Cahill and Grant D. Morse elementary schools will be on a regular schedule. School lunches will not be served at the junior-senior high and Mt. Marion on Tuesday.

Mt. Marion and the junior high will combine to hold a communications workshop from 1 to 5 p.m. A "Creativity in the Classroom" workshop is scheduled for senior high participation.

Diamond Jubilee Ball

The Henry J. Brucks with Bernard Farrell

And a Great Time Was Had by All

KINGSTON—A capacity crowd jammed the Holiday Inn last Saturday night for the Benedictine Hospital Auxiliary's Diamond Jubilee Ball.

Ladies garbed in their finest attire danced with well-groomed escorts to the wee hours of the morning to the tunes of Dick Elliot Bertling and his Katch-Up.

Sparkling arrays of crystal prisms and scores of tiny glittering bulbs set the scene for the 75th anniversary 'diamond' theme. Proceeds from the successful gala will go towards the auxiliary's $200,000 pledge to the hospital building fund.

DEAR ABBY

Inmate Wants to Donate Kidney While He's Alive

DEAR ABBY: I am a 36-year-old man who is in Rutland, Vt., doing 30 years to life for second degree murder. I killed a 15-year-old girl. No reason. I just went off my rocker.

Now the problem: I read in your column that a lot of people need kidneys. I know that kidneys have been transplanted successfully, and I want you to put me in touch with someone who needs one so I can donate one of mine. I don't mean after I'm dead. I mean right now. I know a person can live with only one kidney so if I could give one of mine now maybe I could sleep better.

I realize I can't bring back that poor little girl whose life I took, but I could give some other person life. It won't balance the scales, but it would give some meaning to my life, which is practically useless now.

This letter was not written in haste. I've thought about it for a long time.

I'm not very religious, but God knows this is a sincere request. Can you help me get it granted, Abby?— —George H.

DEAR GEORGE: I don't know the laws covering such a donation, but if you're sincere (and I believe you are) tell the chaplain of the correctional institution what you've told me, and he will advise you. God bless.

DEAR ABBY: A friend has asked me to play "Dear Abby" and mediate a fuss between her and her husband, and I honestly don't know what to tell her.

It seems that her husband is bugged because she is always doing knitting, needlepoint or some kind of handiwork when they're watching TV or just visiting.

He says she has all day to do whatever she wants, and when he comes home, she should give him her undivided attention. He wants her to look at him while they're conversing.

She says she can hear every word he says, and she DOES look at him almost constantly, so he has no legitimate beef.

I can see his point, Abby, but I can also see hers. Do you think he has the right to ask her to quit doing needlework in his face? And should she—just to please him?—IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: He hasn't the right to ask her to quit. Handiwork for many (men as well as women) is therapeutic. It's relaxing and relieves tension. Tell her I said she should stick to her needlework—but look up a little more.

DEAR ABBY: I have a small but annoying problem I need help with. It seems that whenever I telephone a friend I haven't spoken to for some time, his or her first words are something like, "Well, I don't believe I am actually hearing from you," or, "My goodness, I thought you'd dropped off the edge of the earth, etc. . ." (I'm sure you get the idea, Abby.)

It irks me to be put down with such a negative reception, when I have finally taken the initiative and called someone, as though it were MY obligation to do so.

It's the same kind of guilt some elderly folks or shut-ins lay on those who haven't been around to see them for a while. In other words, how does one cope wth people who make you feel guilty?—IRKED

DEAR IRKED: No one can make you feel "guilty" unless you've earned the quilt. (Irritated, put down and even outraged perhaps, but not guilty.) There's no way to prevent others from needling you. Develop a tougher hide.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write tb ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Ukrainian Easter Egg Demonstration

WOODSTOCK—Nina Kincaid, Woodstock artist, will demonstrate the ornate and beautiful art of creating Ukrainian Easter Eggs at the Woodstock Library Friday, March 11, 7:30 p.m. The demonstration is free and the public is invited. The program will be sponsored by the Woodstock Artists Association with matching funds provided by the Ulster County Council on the Arts.

Ms. Kincaid learned the skill as a child from her Ukrainian-born mother who also taught her the language. Additional skills learned from her cultural heritage include mandolin playing and folk dancing. She has taught Ukrainian folk dancing to children for many years and her students participated in the Nationalities Dance Festival in Central Park. She teaches dance at Ruth Ingalls' summer camp in Woodstock.

Each Slavic country has its own egg decorating technique and symbolism, although all have many similarities. The artist explains that the fancy eggs are designed with particular patterns of stars, crosses, ribbons, triangles and other symbols, and a story can be "read" from the symbolism.

The process is akin to the Indonesian batik technique; both use a combination of melted wax and dye to create the patterns. Ms. Kincaid's paintings are strongly influenced by the geometric forms from the peasant craft.

If anyone is unable to attend the demonstration at the Woodstock Library Friday evening, Ms. Kincaid is also scheduled to be at the West Hurley Library, tonight, 7 to 9, and the Ulster Savings Bank, 280 Wall St., Kingston, Friday, March 18, beginning at 4 p.m.

Phil Brown Heads for State Tourney With One Regret

By BRUCE GOLDBERG
Freeman staff

KINGSTON—After the countless hours of tedious practice, the 80-plus matches over the years of involvement with wrestling...and oh, the dieting, the agonizing task of forcing the body to meet the scales at 119 pounds for each match, Phil Brown has reached his ultimate goal as a high school wrestler.

By winning the Section One Open tournament at 119 pounds last yecSaturday night, Brown became the first matman in Kingston High School history to qualify for the state tournament to be held this weekend in Syracuse.

"I'm proud to know that," said Brown. "A lot of people have congratulated me and called me to wish me well."

His 132-pound teammate, Doug Reedy, may also go to Syracuse because the wrestler who beat him in the sectional finals, Ken Booker of Woodlands High School, is hampered with a torn chest muscle which makes it difficult for him to even shake hands this week. Reedy would replace Booker and represent Section One.

Brown would be happy to have Reedy there, but the one person he wants most of all in Syracuse can't be there.

"I just wish my father was still alive to see me," said the 18-year-old senior. "I think I'd do so much better."

Phil Brown Sr. passed away in 1964. He had been a heavy influence on his son due to his skill as a wrestler and gymnast for Kingston High School, Lincoln University and Springfield University. His death put the heavy load of raising Pnil, brother Jim and sister Phyllis on Mrs. Ruth Joiner Brown.

"I have to give my mother a lot of credit," said Brown. "To bring us up by herself, there was a lot of pressure on her."

Ruth Joiner Brown teaches at Bailey Junior High, serves as a beautician and owns Brown's MareMarket on Guild Street and she, her family and a cousin work the store.

Phyllis is 17 and a junior at KHS. Jim is 16, a sophomore, easily remembered for his recent exploits as a guard on the basketball team.

Can Phil add one more medal to the family's trophy case?

"I thinkmy chances are pretty good," he said. "Last year, I kind of choked up in the sectionals when I had a good chance of going to state."

KHS coach Dean Short feels that "Phil will do well in the tournament. This week all the Section One wrestlers are working out together, and Phil will work specifically with (Mount Vernon coach) Jim Lee and (Woodlands coach) Randy Forrest, both former Section One champs. They can teach him some Greco-Roman moves. Phil's quick enough to pick this stuff up in one week."

The meet brings together 11 sectional champions in each weight class from around the state. All of them went through the same tough grind and are of the same quality as Brown. Nobody gets there by accident.

Brown will bring a 24-1 record and championships in the Dutchess County Scholastic League, Section One AA Divisional and Section One Open tournament to Syracuse. Each bracket is preseeded and Brown is already in the quarterfinals. To win the state title, he would have to win three matches. All competitors are guaranteed two matches. If a matman loses his first match, he drops into the consolation bracket and has a chance to advance.

What are Brown's chances? Let's just say that the favorite in his class is one Mark Iacovelli of Ithaca, who is 31-0 this season. He was the 105 pound champion two years ago, the 112 pound champ last year, carries a career mark of 131-1-1 and has been featured in Sports Illustrated.

Brown will meet Section Eight (Nassau County, Long Island) champion Ed Pidgeon of Locust Valley High School in his quarterfinal match.

Brown began wrestling in fifth grade and has been offered a full scholarship to Morgan State College in Baltimore, Md. by mat coach James Phillips.

Most of Brown's wins this season were by pins. He is exceptionally quick and his long arms and legs enable him to wrap up foes in a variety of exasperating pinning combinations.

Marlboro's Lucinda Peterson fires over Cathy Blum...

...so next time Kathy Mahoney comes over to help out

It's Red Hook-Coleman...Again

KINGSTON — Take your pick. Ulster County Athletic League girls basketball is either a broken record or deja vu.

Red Hook High, shooting for another undefeated season, stretched its three-year win streak to 40 games Wednesday with a 51—33 triumph over Pine Bush. With that decision the Raiders clinched the American Division pennant—just like they did last year.

Meanwhile, Coleman bounced Marlboro, 59-36, and clinched the National Division pennant—also just like last year. And once again it will be Red Hook and Coleman in the UCAL championship game.

In other action Wednesday, Wallkill dropped New Paltz, 61-20, Onteora crushed Rondout, 72-18, and Highland upset Fallsburgh, 41-38.

It was not the kind of game Red Hook is used to. Pine Bush kept the Raiders constantly looking over their shoulders for three quarters, trailing by only one, 34-33, at the start of the final eight minutes.

"We had a host of turnovers in the first half," said Red Hook coach John Kuhn. "We were shooting badly and we just didn't do much right."

But by the fourth quarter a drastic change took place on the court as the Raider defense denied Pine Bush a single point.

"The defense started to play like it should," Kuhn explain. "We were moving out to the ball."

Three fast breaks, two by Kelli Mosher and one by Denise Sevigny, got the Raiders off to the explosive quarter. The defense cut off Carolyn Edgar and Karen Andrews who had kept the Bushwomen close. The 17 unanswered points made it look easy.

Coleman had some tense moments in its game as its press led to some early foul trouble. With three starters charged with two personals each in the first quarter, the Stateswomen called it off. They applied the pressure again only when the Dukes knotted the score at 20-all in the second period.

"We just broke it open right there," said Coleman coach Deb Getty, who praised Cathy Blum for an outstanding effort with her 23 points and ten steals. Sonia Queen and Lucinda Peterson had 13 and 11 points respectively for Marlboro hitting mostly from the outside.

By making use of all its women-power in preparation for a clas with Red Hook Friday, Wallkill was able to get by New Paltz handily. Mary Connors, Cindy Birdsall and Kathy Morrissey all scored in double figures to power the Panther attack.

Onteora's strength of numbers overwhelmed Rondout as ten different players hit the hoop. "We were outnumbered and outrebounded, said RVC coach Ed Cheeley whose team trailed 39-6 at the half. "They did what we didn't do, but they earned what they got."

Tami Beahm canned 12, and Leah Wesselmann and Dawn Oathout each added 10 to the OCS total. Stacy Countryman had eight for Rondout.

Highland held Cheryl Prince to 11 points. "That was the key," said Highland coach Toni Hewitt. "Cheryl Dunn played against her, and our zone kept Fallsburgh from working the ball in to her."

Dawn Lipinski had 16 and Dunn ten for the Big Blue. Marie DiVita topped the Comets with a dozen.

Championship Game March 19 at Ulster

STONE RIDGE—The girls basketball championship of the Ulster County Athletic League will be played at Ulster County Community College on Saturday, March 19 at 2 p.m., it was announced today by UCAL executive secretary Pete Meoli of Ellenville High.

All tickets for the contest matching divisional winners Red Hook and Coleman will be sold at the door. Tickets cost $2 for adults and $1 for students.

Highland, Liberty Gain

LOCH SHELDRAKE — The finalists in Saturday's Section Nine Class B championship basketball game will need no introductions when they meet at the Sullivan Community College gym. Highland High and Liberty have already played each other twice this season.

The teams advanced Wednesday night with solid semifinal victories as Highland held off Burke, 66-61, and Liberty drubbed another Ulster County Athletic League foe, Fallsburgh, 67-49.

The Big Blue didn't know much about Burke but they knew that a win over the Eagles would mean another crack at a team which had placed higher than they in the UCAL's Division I. That was motivation enough.

It spurred the Blue to a good start and enabled them to take a three-point lead into the locker room at the half. The losers made the gap up quickly with two quick buckets in the third quarter that put Highland down, 30-29, but that was to be the last Burke advantage of the night.

Utilizing an aggressive press, Highland ripped six steals away over the remainder of the quarter. Those turnovers were costly, and Jeff Gersch, one of five Highlanders to reach double figures, helped make them count with half of eight straight points that boosted the UCAL school back on top.

John Eichler banked in a pair of three-point plays to aid the Highland resurgence. The winners took control of the contest with a 22-10 third quarter, and Burke couldn't come any closer than five points the rest of the way.

Jim Delmar hit 20, Phil Crimi had 18, Gersch and Eichler each had 12 and Bruce McCarthy added 10 as Highland improved its overall record to 13-6.

Fallsburgh's stab at dethroning Liberty was short and not too sweet. The Comets hit ten of the game's first 14 points, but after that it was Nate Bell, who helped out ailing teammate Milt Martin, leading a Redskin rampage.

Bell finished with 20 points to lead all scorers, and in the second period a red hot Eugene Duffy got in the act as Liberty overtook the Comets.

The UCAL chmamps continued their assault on the hoop in the third period and ballooned a lead up to 21 points. Things might have gotten silly at that point, but Fallsburgh finally found itself. Center Larin Young and reserve Herb Finn caught fire to cut the gap back to ten.

Martin, the leading scorer in the league this year who didn't start the game because of illness, recovered enough to show his form. He drilled a couple of baskets to remove any danger of a Comet comback.

Jaworski to Eagles

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Quarterback Ron Jaworski and tight end Charles Young are on new teams today without even signing a contract.

It all happened Wednesday when the Los Angeles Rams and the Philadelphia Eagles traded first refusal rights to the players. The Rams got Young while the Eagles acquired Jaworski.

What it means is the two teams now have the trading rights of their respective new players. Both Jaworski (Rams) and Young (Eagles) played out their options last season but still "belonged" to their teams. Now, if they are offered contracts by other teams, the Rams (Young) and Eagles (Jaworski) have first priority to match the offer or be compensated.

"Charles Young would give us an added dimension as both a wide receiver and tight end," said Rams coach Chuck Knox. "I coached him in the Pro Bowl and I'm delighted we've acquired the rights to a player of this quality."

Dick Vermeil was equally happy with Jaworski.

"Having been around Ron one full season (when Vermeil was a Ram assistant), I'm confident he has the potential to mature into a fine NFL quarterback."

Young, a University of Southern California product, was NFL rookie of the year in 1973 when he led all tight ends with 55 receptions and six touchdowns. In 1974, he caught 63 passes for 696 yards and three touchdowns.

"I want to play for a warm weather franchise," Young said. "I'd like to play on natural turf and I'd like to be with a contender."

The Rams started Jaworski last season, but he was relegated to the No. 3 spot behind Pat Haden and James Harris after he got hurt. He protested loudly and made no secret he wanted to be traded, playing out his option.

Jaworski was a second-round Ram draft choice in 1973 but spent that year in ready reserve. His best year was 1975 when he had 24 completions on 48 passes for 302 yards. He led the Rams to three victories over Green Bay, Pittsburgh and St. Louis after Harris was sidelined with a shoulder injury.

Jaworski, who has often boosted he could become a star if given a chance, was expected to sign with the Eagles because they put last year's starter, Mike Boryla, on the trading block.

If Jaworski signs and Boryla leaves, all three Philadelphia quarterbacks this season will be ex-Rams, including Roman Gabriel and John Walton.

Local baseball stars of the past were honored Wednesday night at the City League's annual Hall of Fame ceremonies at Tommy's Restaurant. Rangers' Turning Point?

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rod Gilbert called it the "most memorable moment of my life" and predicted it would be a turning point in the fortunes of his New York Rangers teammates.

It was difficult to tell after the New York Rangers' 6-4 victory over the Minnesota North Stars Wednesday night whether Gilbert was happier with the gifts and tributes showered on him on "Rod Gilbert Night" or with the fact the Rangers moved to within two points of Atlanta in the battle for the third playoff berth in the National Hockey League's Patrick Division.

"I scored the 400th goal of my career in a losing cause," he pointed out. "I was overwhelmed at having this night but I hoped it would end in a victory.

"The biggest gift I can get is if we make the playoffs," he added. "This game...coming from behind...was a big morale booster. I think we're making our drive for the playoffs."

Gilbert, a veteran of 16 NHL seasons, scored one goal and assisted on another in the Rangers' victory. He gave the Rangers a 2-1 lead with his 24th goal of the season in the first period and assisted on one goal when New York rallied for four in the third period. The win went to rookie goalie Dave Tataryn, who was called up overnight from New Haven of the American Hockey League.

"I want to thank all my friends in New York personally," Gilbert said in a pre-game ceremony. "You have given me a house, respect and love. They are more important than fame. This is the city I love —The Big Apple."

Gilbert received numerous gifts from friends, the media, Madison Square Garden and even the North Stars, which included a station wagon. Among the tributes he received was a congratulatory telegram from President Carter.

The Rangers, who can tie for third place by beating Boston tonight and play Atlanta twice over the weekend, received a big boost from the New York Islanders who defeated the Flames 6-2 in Atlanta Wednesday night.

Rangers 6, Stars 4

Carol Vadnais, Bill Goldsworthy, Phil Esposito and Steve Vickers scored for the Rangers in the third period with Gilbert picking up an assist on Vickers' tally. Goals by Ernie Hicke and Steve Jensen had given the North Stars a 3-2 lead at the end of two periods.

Islanders 6, Flames 2

Denis Potvin had a goal and two assists for the Islanders, who scored three goals in the second period and two in the third after the teams played a 1-1 tie through the first session. The Flames took a brief 2-1 lead on Bill Clement's goal in the second period but the Islanders broke it open with goals by Billy Harris, J.P. Parise and Potvin within a five-minute span.

Sabres 6, Wings 3

Craig Ramsay and Gil Perreault scored two goals each leading the Sabres over the Red Wings. The goals were the 30th and 31st of the season for Perreault. Terry Harper scored two goals for the Red Wings.

Penguins 3, Rockies 0

Goals by Jean Pronovost, Wayne Bianchin and Blair Chapman paced the Penguins to their victory as goalie Denis Herron tallied his first shutout since Oct. 24, 1972. Herron made 32 saves, including 14 in the second period.

Leafs 2, Canadiens 2

Borge Salming scored on a breakaway with 1:46 left in the game, earning the Leafs their tie with the Canadiens at Toronto. Steve Shutt had given the Canadiens a 2-1 lead and an apparent victory with his 54th goal of the season only one minute and 13 seconds earlier. Darryl Sittler also scored for Toronto, marking the fifth consecutive season in which he has scored 30 or more goals.

Canucks 5, Capitals 2

First period goals by Dennis KKearns, Bobby Lalonde and Derek Sanderson gave Vancouver a 3-1 lead and Rick Blight and Don Lever added later goals. Craig Patrick and Gerry Meehan scored for Washington.

Roberts' Roberts Not Enough

By UPI

Oral Roberts University could have used a few more things than the record 65 points it got from Anthony Roberts in an opening-round National Invitation Tournament game Wednesday night: like another technical foul on Oregon coach Dick Harter, or perhaps even another prayer or two from its evangelist founder.

Whatever the Titans needed, they didn't get enough of it, however, as Greg Ballard scored 43 points in leading Oregon to a 90-89 victory and into next Tuesday night's quarter-finals of the NIT at Madison Square Garden in New York.

Despite constant double and sometimes triple-teaming, Roberts connected on 25 of 37 field goals and 15 of 16 free throws in breaking George Mikan's 22—year tournament record of 53 points. What made the performance even more remarkable was the fact that Roberts became ill at halftime.

"I was so intense about winning that I got sick to my stomach at the half," said Roberts, the nation's second leading scorer.

Harter, on the other hand, may not have been physically sick, but something about the officiating in the game at Tulsa upset him enough to allow Oral Roberts to shoot four technical foul shots in an 11½-minute stretch. The technicals were followed by two Roberts' free throws and loss of ball possession, providing Oral Roberts ample opportunity to come back from a nine-point deficit and nearly win the game.

"Without a doubt this was the greatest game Anthony ever played," said ORU coach Jerry Hale. "Considering the defense he was going against and all the double teaming they gave him, it was a fantastic performance."

Ballard's performance wasn't too shabby, either. In addition to scoring almost at will, he helped Oregon to a solid rebounding advantage. According to Roberts, that was the difference in the game.

"When Alvin Scott had to leave they got too many second shots on us," Roberts said. "I was in there all the time and I still do much to stop them from getting those second shots."

Oregon, 19-9, next will play the winner of tonight's St. Bonaventure-Rutgers game.

If Wednesday night's openinground games are used as a barometer, then this year's NIT figures to be one of the best ever. All four games were decided in the final minute.

All-America guard Otis Birdsong scored 30 points in helping Houston survive a furious Indiana State rally and 44 points by Larry Bird to win a tense 83-82 victory.

Houston appeared to be coasting to an easy victory with five minutes left, but its slowdown tactics backfired as Bird scored eight points in the final minute to create a 52-52 tie with 58 seconds left.

After Mike Schultz converted the first half of a one-and-one free throw situation 21 seconds later, Bird attempted a winning shot which bounced around the rim and failed to fall.

Houston will play Illinois State, an earlier winner over Creighton, next Monday night.

At Blacksburg, Va., guard Marshall Ashford scored 24 points, including six in the final 3:20, and Ron Bell added 18 as Virginia Tech, the 1973 champ, beat Georgetown. Virginia Tech will play the winner of tonight's Alabama-Memphis State game.

Villanova also advanced to the quarter-finals with a 71-68 overtime victory over Old Dominion as Keith Herron scored 22 points and his brother, Larry, added 20, including a crucial jump shot which broke the game's last tie in the closing moments.

Villanova will now play the winner of tonight's Seton HallMassachusetts game next Tuesday night.

Sports Roundup

Seattle Slew Impresses

Seattle Slew showed Wednesday why he was voted 1976 Two-Year-Old Horse of the Year when he scored a nine-length victory in track record time at Hialeah in his 1977 debut. The Bold Reasoning-My Charmer colt took command from the outset of the sevenfurlong sprint under his regular jockey, Jean Cruguet, in the $7,000 allowance feature and completed the race against his seven 3-year-old rivals in 1:20 3-5 for his fourth career win in as many starts. The time was two-fifths of a second faster than the Hialeah record for the distance, set by Lonetree in 1974, and just four-fifths of a second more than Triple Bend's world record clocking for the distance, a 1:19 4-5 set at Hollywood Park in 1972. The victory, worth only $4,200, increased Seattle Slew's career earnings for owner Karen L. Taylor to $98,550. The heavy betting to place and show on the winner — the crowd of 10,928 made him the 1-10 favorite — created minus place and show pools totaling $2,507.08....

At Aqueduct, Ring O' Bells gave jockey Angel Cordero his third winner of the day in the $36,425 Cicada Stakes for 3-year-old fillies. Made the even-money favorite, Ring O' Bell eked out a neck triumph in the six-furlong sprint over Shufleur, with Maria's Baby another 1¼ lengths back. Ring O' Bells paid $4.00, $2.80 and $2.10, Shufleur returned $3.20 and $2.20 and Maria's Baby, ridden by apprentice Steve Cauthen — who returned from opening day at Hialeah to post one winner, three seconds and two thirds — showed at $2.10....

John Akii-Bua, the Ugandan who won the 400 meter hurdles in the 1972 Olympics in Munich, beamed as he denied a British radio report that Ugandan military police had put him behind bars. To deliver the denial, the gold medalist appeared on Ugandan television wearing his police officer's uniform. "He was happy and cheerful, as always," the government newspaper, Voice of Uganda, commented the following day....

Former base-stealing king Maury Wills blasted the Texas Rangers Wednesday, saying they reneged on their agreement when they signed Wills' 24-year-old son to a minimum $19,000 major league contract instead of a promised $25,000. Bump Wills is a rookie second baseman. Wills, the Dodgers' baserunning coach, said Texas general manager Dan O'Brien had promised to sign his son to a $25,000 contract, but instead offered $6,000 less...

Senior coach Boris Kulagin said Thursday that the Soviet national ice hockey team faces tough times at the Vienna world championships and will begin training earlier than ever before. Kulagin told the official Tass news agency the Soviet national team would be called together March 21 for medical checkups and the beginning of training. Kulagin said, "We shall try to re-establish the team as the strongest ice hockey team in the world and Europe"...

Defending champion Dick Weber, hoping to prove something to pro bowling's younger generation, grabbed a 63-pin lead after the second round Wednesday night of the $100,000 AMF Pro Classic at Garden City Bowl. Weber, a 47-year-old Hall of Famer, led by 54 pins after the first round and increased his lead with games of 234, 210, 221, 258, 183 and 201 for a six-game block of 1,307. His 12-game total was 2,688, a 224 average. "Maybe I can show the young upstarts on the tour a thing or two this week," said Weber, pro bowling's all-time leading money winner with nearly $540,000. "I've been bowling in this house for 18 or 19 years and because I know the characteristics of these lanes, I'm very confident. I believe I'll do very well here this week." Dick Ritger of River Falls, Wisc., ninth after the first six games, jumped to second with games of 256, 217, 224, 224, 189 and 224 for a six-game block of 1,335. His 12game total was 2,625, a 218.7 average....

Texas-El Paso is the overwhelming favorite for the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships which begin Friday night, but the real winners appear to be Kenya and other African nations who did not compete in the Olympics. UTEP, loaded with imports from Kenya, is shooting for an unprecedented fourth straight indoor team championship. The Miners got a boost last week when high jumper Greg Joy returned to action after being sidelined with back problems and turned in a 7-feet, 3½-inch effort. Their distance medley relay team also set the world record last week. African track stars who were unable to compete in the Olympics have set their sights on the NCAA Indoors as a possible springboard to a huge world track meet scheduled for Germany next year, the mid-point between Olympics....

The committee organizing the 1980 Moscow Olympics signed a contract Wednesday giving Nippon Educational Television exclusive Japanese radio and television rights for an undisclosed price....

Veteran boxing trainer-manager Dick Sadler, who worked with Muhammed Ali and George Foreman, was reported in stable condition Wednesday after suffering a mild heart attack....

Boxing trainer Howie Steindler, 72, who managed featherweight champion Danny "Little Red" Lopez, was found shot to death in his car on a freeway, Los Angeles police said today....

Hahn Chang Sang of South Korea shot a sizzling 6-underpar 66 today to lead the first round of the Malaysian Open Golf Championship—the fourth leg of the Asian circuit....

Former world auto racing champion Niki Lauda has tested a new six-wheeled Ferrari formula one race car and told reporters "We shall see." The Austrian driver, who narrowly escaped death in a fiery crash during last year's German Grand Prix and then came back to win the South African Grand Prix last weekend, tried out the six-wheel Ferrari 312 T2 on the company's Fiorano track Wednesday before leaving for Vienna. He said he planned to return Friday for further tests at the Fiat track near the southern town of Nardo....

NEW YORK (UPI) — Latest one kicking around the baseball camps is that Charlie Finley is about to defy Bowie Kuhn again and sell the Texas Rangers another one of his left-handers, Vida Blue, for $2.5 million...The price is right but the team is wrong. That $400,000 they paid Finley for reliever Paul Lindblad is going to hold the Rangers awhile. They have no intention of giving Finley what he's asking for Blue but Montreal will. The Expos will even throw in a second-line player or two, and what will the Commissioner call that, a trade or a sale?....

Rather remarkable how Bucky Dent's agent, Nick Buoniconti, former middle linebacker for the Miami Dolphins, made the transition from football to baseball so quickly. Negotiating for Dent, who got $60,000 last year and wants $450,000 over the next three, Buoniconti said his client should be paid with the best shortstops in the majors, adding "it looks as though the White Sox can't afford Bucky."...Buoniconti may be much closer to the truth than he suspects. White Sox and Indians both are having serious financial problems. Braves and Twins aren't that far behind, and Finley is in the same boat. That's the reason he's trying to sell his players. Ultimately, he'll probably sell the A's, but he still wants to go to the mat a few more times with Kuhn. Finley enjoys that almost as much as he does winning ball games....

One of the first things Willis Reed did after being named the Knicks' new coach was give former teammate Walt Frazier a vote of confidence and it sounded to me like the same kind of vote a guy is given before they trade him. Commenting on whether Frazier has slowed up or not, Reed conceded he may have lost a step or so, then defended Frazier by saying he was "still better than 80 or maybe 90 per cent of the guards in the league." To me, that sounds as if Walt Frazier may be moving on....

Wayne Pinkerton, a 24-year-old non-roster shortstop from Hollendale, Miss., was flagging down ground balls in the Texas Rangers' camp at Pompano Beach, Fla., Wednesday when manager Frank Lucchesi came over to talk to him about the team's opening exhibition game. "You're starting against the Yankees Friday," Lucchesi advised Pinkerton. "For real?" the rookie asked, his eyes aglow. "Yup, you're starting at shortstop," Lucchesi confirmed. "Gee," exclaimed Pinkerton, "I gotta call my high school coach tonight and tell him."....

Third segment of "The Way it Was," a nostalgic TV series of memorable happenings in sports, is due to be shown this Sunday evening with Joe DiMaggio offering his version of Ernie Lombardi's famous "snooze" at home plate in the 1939 World Series between the Yankees and Reds. DiMaggio was one of two Yankee players who scored as the Cincinnati catcher supposedly lay napping only a foot or so from home plate, but in reality, poor Lom wasn't sleeping, he was hurting, although he never used that as an alibi after the game....

Bernie Bierman, the late University of Minnesota football coach who died Tuesday at the age of 83, was one of those rare old-timers who saw some aspects of the game as being better today than they were in his day. But he said he never saw a team anywhere any better than his 1934 team, and I agree. Only ones I ever saw that came close were Notre Dame '49, Army '44 and Alabama '34....

Tom Seaver's capsule comment on major league salaries: "No matter how much he's making, every individual wants to be paid what he feels he's worth." Does Seaver think fans generally understand that? "Some do, some don't," he says....

Willie Mays takes issue with Frank Lane on the subject of Rick Monday's strikeouts. Citing Monday's $125,000 salary and 125 strikeouts with the Cubs last season, Lane points out that came to $1,000 a strikeout. Now that he's with the Dodgers, Monday probably will get $250,000, and that means he was raised to $2,000 a strikeout, Lane says. "What does it matter how many times Monday strikes out?" asks Mays. "What's the difference between a strikeout and a popup or a long fly that's caught? Besides, how many home runs did Monday hit last year? How many runs did he drive in? That's what's important." Monday had 32 homers and drove in 77 runs....Over to you, Frank Lane....

Writers Honor Olympians

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Boxing Writers Association, in an unprecedented move, Wednesday awarded the 1977 Edward J. Neil trophy to all five U.S. Olympic gold medalists at last year's Montreal Games.

The five who will be honored at the BWA's 52nd annual dinner at the Downtown Athletic Club on May 10 are welterweight Sugar Ray Leonard, lightweight Howard Davis, flyweight Leo Randolph, light heavyweight Leon Spinks and his brother, middleweight Mike Spinks.

Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier were named co-winners last year for their 15-round fight in Manila in 1975.

Former heavyweight champ won the inaugural award in 1938 as the person who did the most for boxing that year.

Willis Stresses Old-Fashioned Principle

NEW YORK (UPI) — In the three years since he retired as a player, Willis Reed has been a casual observer of the pro basketball scene. Even so, he has noted a gradual change.

"The players, skillwise, are probably better," Reed feels. "At least I'd say they're more individually skilled. But I don't know whether they're willing to sacrifice their individual, personal goals for the good of all.

"When I was with the Knicks we didn't have guys averaging over 23 points. We knew you didn't have to score 30 points to be a good player."

Reed, the quintessence of a team player, knows he could have scored more than his career average of 18.7 points if that would have been the measure of his contribution. But he also knows that by not scoring more points, he helped the New York Knicks win their only two National Basketball Association championships.

It's this old-fashioned principle, of what you as an individual can contribute to the team, that the 34 year-old Reed will stress when he succeeds Red Holzman as coach of the Knicks next season. And Reed makes no secret that his idea of coaching consists of "a lot of Red Holzman philosophy because he's the only coach I played for and he's been very successful."

Therefore, Reed gave the impression Wednesday, when he accepted a three-year contract for an estimated $125,000 a season, that he wasn't overly impressed that Bob McAdoo has won three consecutive scoring championships. Although he certainly intends to make use of the big man's awesome offensive ability, Reed explained without particular reference to McAdoo, "I personally don't like to have players so far out of line offensively. If you have a guy who averages 30 points and then he scores 10 points, you're killed.

"I'd rather have more guys in double figures and have a balanced attack. I want my guys to realize that somewhere along the line you have to sacrifice something for the good of the team."

Reed feels the Knicks, despite their 29-36 record and the fact they're likely to miss the playoffs for the second year in a row, have a strong team. What he wants is to have the opportunity to work with them in training camp and to instruct them, particularly on defense.

"We'll talk about it," he said. "I'll tell each player 'this is what I think your basic attributes are. This is what you do well. This is what we want you to do.' We all have habits, things we do all the time. When we comb our hair we make the part in the same place. When we scratch our ear we use the same finger. That's what basketball is. Habit."

Reed then recalled that when the old Knicks reported to camp in July and Holzman told them to do something "he'd make us stay in the gym till we got it right. This is the philosophy we've got to go back to.

"Basically, the game is defense. It was the tradition of the New York Knickerbockers and what they became known for. We're going to have to spend a lot of time together, and learn to get it right."

The one thing Reed is going to demand of his players is every ounce of their ability. He believes the Knicks are entitled to this in exchange for high salaries.

"The main thing the players have to know is that it's a contract," he said. "For this (the contract) I give you 100 per cent of my body. As a man I expect no less from them. If someone is giving less, I'll tell them, 'You're giving me only 85 per cent. You're cheating me of 15 per cent.'

"Sometimes the players just don't realize they're not giving it all."

Nuggets Know the Feeling

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Julius Erving, doing what he does best, did it again Wednesday night. He beat the Denver Nuggets.

Last year the Nuggets easily had the best regular season record in the American Basketball Association, but the playoff finals between the Nuggets and the New York Nets developed into a duel between David Thompson and Erving.

Dr. J's spectacular performance prevailed over Thompson and the Nuggets' heralded team play.

Erving and Thompson, the ABA's top two arguments for merger, have moved their act to the National Basketball Association this year, but the result was the same Wednesday night as Erving's 38-point performance led the Philadelphia 76ers to a 129-125 double overtime victory over the visiting Nuggets.

The crowd of 18,021 screamed its approval as the 76ers overcame a 17-point deficit and a 40-point performance by Thompson.

The Nuggets held a 14-point lead at halftime, but the 76ers pulled even by the end of the third quarter. The Nuggets and the 76ers then played to a standstill in the fourth quarter and the first overtime.

"They (Nuggets) took control in the first half," said 76ers coach Gene Shue. "It was a credit to our players to stay in there. I knew we had to play tough defense to win."

George McGinnis, who scored 24 points for the 76ers, sent the game into overtime with a pair of free throws with 22 seconds left in regulation time and Caldwell Jones scored a pair of key baskets in the second overtime to give Philadelphia the victory.

In other games, Seattle defeated Boston, 114-86; Milwaukee edged Washington, 109-107, and Houston beat Phoenix, 105-100.

SuperSonics 114, Celtics 86

Slick Watts' 24 points paced the visiting Sonics surprising rout of the Celtics. Fred Brown and Tom Burleson each had 14 points for Seattle, while Jo Jo White topped the Celtics with 16.

Bucks 109, Bullets 107

Lloyd Walton, who had 13 points, scored seven points in a 9-2 fourth-quarter spurt that sparked the Bucks' victory over the Bullets. Brian Winters and Bob Dandridge led the Milwaukee scoring with 26 points each, while Phil Chenier's 25 points topped the Bullets.

Rockets 105, Suns 100

Rudy Tomjanovich's 32-point performance led the Rockets to their fifth straight victory. The loss was the Suns' 10th straight. Moses Malone had 21 points and Calvin Murphy 19 for the Rockets, while Alvan Adams had 26 and Ricky Sobers 25 for Phoenix.

Mills and Cole Earn All-DCSL Cage Honors

WAPPINGERS FALLS—Senior guard Darrell Mills of Kingston High School and senior forward Tim Cole of Saugerties have been named to the basketball coaches Dutchess County Scholastic League all-star first teams.

In addition, forward Jim Hackett of Saugerties was one of two honorable mention selections in Division II.

The Division I all-star team consists of Mills, senior Steve Yellen of John Jay, senior Bill Beausoleil of John Jay, junior Scott Devine of Roosevelt and senior Mark Pineiro of Arlington. Honorable mention picks were junior Tony Larson of Ketcham, senior John Foster of John Jay and senior Bill Kustas of Arlington.

The Division II all-star squad includes Cole, league high scorer and senior Mark Ramsey of Spackenkill, junior Chubby Oliver of Beacon, sophomore Jerome Elting of Poughkeepsie and senior Bill Quinn of Lourdes. Honorable mention choices were Hackett, a senior and senior Mike Hughes of Beacon.

Pineiro was selected as the league's Most Valuable Player and Yellen was picked as Most Outstanding. John Jay coach Bill Green was named Coach of the Year.

Mills led the Tigers in scoring with 282 points in 18 games for a 15.7 average. He passed off for 125 assists, had 41 steals and shot 44 per cent from the field, 129 of 290.

Cole was the DCSL's second-leading scorer with a 19.2 average on 61 per cent shooting from the field and 69 per cent from the free throw line. He also grabbed nine rebounds per game.

Hackett averaged 15.2 points and nine rebounds per game and shot 74 per cent from thecharity stripe, 106 of 143.

DCSL Coaches Like Divisions

WAPPINGERS FALLS—Dutchess County Scholastic League varsity basketball coaches will recommend to the league's athletic directors the retention of the one year old divisional setup that divides the league into twofive-team groups according to school population.

The coaches will also recommend the awarding of a banner to each division winner and a trophy to the league champion. The banner rule would enable two teams, if tied for the division title, to have a decisdeciding playoff game that wouldn't count against its 18-game regular season limit.

Another recommendation is to have the playoff games matching the third, fourth and fifth place teams as a tripleheader on a Friday night, probably at Dutchess County Community College. The following night would be a twinbill matching the first and second place teams.

A final recommendation to be made concerns starting times of regular season games. The suggestion is to retain the 6 p.m. junior varsity and 7:30 p.m. varsity starts for Tuesday nights but to move back one-half hour for Friday nights to 6:30 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Martin Tops UCAL Scorers

KINGSTON—Ulster County Athletic League basketball champion Liberty High School also came up with the league's top scorer in senior Milt Martin. The 6-foot-4 forward led in both total points and scoring average for loop contests, notching 374 points in 16 games for a 23.4 average.

Figures were compiled by the Freeman sports department.

Steve Low of Pine Bush was a close second, tallying 366 points for a 22.9 clip. Only 11 points behind in third place was Anthony Monroe of Marlboro, 355 points and a 22.2 average. Fourth was Jeff Debrosky of Rondout Valley, 348 and 21.75. The top five was rounded out with Larin Young of Fallsburgh, 291 and 18.1.

The top 10 also included Jeff Gersch of Highland, 270and 18.;Nick Boffenmeyer of Wallkill, 287 and 17.9; Matt Kurdziel of Red Hook, 278 and 17.4; Paul Conklin of Ellenville, 268 and 16.75, and Jim Delmar of Highland, 241 and 15.1. Highland was the only team to place two players in the top 10.

Coleman's top scorer was Bill Robertson, 12th with 218 points in 15 games, 14.5. Dave Engel was 18th for the Statesmen, tallying 198 points in 16 games for a 12.5 average.

Onteora's top man was guard Rennie Cantine, 14th with a 13.9 average, and New Paltz' big gun was guard Rich Siegel, 15th at 13.1. Rondout Valley placed three players in the top 16, including No. 11 Mike Mills at 14.9 and No. 16 Paris Perry at 13.1.

Two UCCC Marks Fall In M-H Conference

MIDDLETOWN—Three records were set by two different players in Mid-Hudson Conference basketball action this season. Two of the records formerly belonged to Ulster County Community College players.

Rockland County Community College's Bill McGeorge, who averaged 23 points and 15 rebounds per game during two seasons for the Rockets, set a career rebounding mark of 330, breaking the record of 227 set last year by Larry Rhodes of Westchester.

McGeorge also set a record for career field goals with a total of 199, breaking the former mark of 162 set by Jerry Moss of Ulster CCC between 1968-70.

Steve Lewis of Orange CCC set the other record for career free throw accuracy. He sank 95 of 120 attempts for 79.2 percent. The old mark was 76.8 per cent by Raschid Walker of Ulster CCC.

Colt forward Newton (Bike) Medder also broke the conference rebounding mark with a total of 247, 83 behind McGeorge.

Yanks Too Strong For Competition

(Editor's note: Another in a series of major league baseball spring training camp sizeups. Today: New York Yankees.)

By FRED McMANE
UPI Sports Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — "Stop the season, we want to get off."

That could easily be the slogan for the rest of the American League East teams this year as they try to catch the New York Yankees.

The defending AL champions did some expensive shopping in the offseason, adding such illustrious names as Reggie Jackson and Don Gullett to their already star-filled roster. By so doing, they enter this season with enough talent to make the division race a runaway by July 4.

"I don't think we really have a weakness," says Roy White, the veteran left fielder. "We've got the bench, we're solid defensively all the way around and we've got the hitters. It's gonna be tougher in some respects than last year because other teams will be pointing for us."

Unless the Yankees get complacent, however, it doesn't appear they can be beaten. The team is so strong that Graig Nettles, the American League's home run hitter, may hit seventh and Ken Holtzman, a former 20-game winner, may not crack the starting rotation.

STRENGTHS — All-Stars in Jackson, catcher Thurman Munson, first baseman Chris Chambliss, second baseman Willie Randolph, third baseman Graig Nettles and outfielder Mickey Rivers; great pitching depth; superb bench.

WEAKNESSES — Poor-hitting shortstop; weak throwing arms in outfield except for Jackson.

NEW FACES — Jackson should provide consistent power and Gullett will be No. 2 starting pitcher; Jim Wynn, purchased from Atlanta, will serve as right-handed designated hitter; Paul Blair, obtained from Baltimore, adds outfield defensive insurance; Rookie Mickey Klutts could win starting shortstop berth.

OUTLOOK — If the Yankees don't make the World Series again, President Carter should launch a Congressional investigation.

Tiant Is Mexico-Bound as Dispute Worsens

BOSTON (UPI) — He was a volcano in blue denim, pouring smoke from his cigar and fumes of anger from his overheated face.

After flying home from Florida Wednesday night, pitcher Luis Tiant erupted for 10 minutes at Logan Airport — unleashing his anger in spurts at the Boston Red Sox and the media that has criticized him for wanting a new contract.

"The way I feel now, I'm going home to Mexico," said the Cuban native who moved his year-round home to Boston from Mexico City in 1975. "I talked to my wife this morning and she feels the same way I do. She told me to come back home (to his suburban Milton house) and we will go back to Mexico."

Tiant had been in the Tampa area — "running 2½ miles a day and doing more than I would have at training camp" — waiting for the Red Sox to meet his contract demands. But following the latest in a fruitless series of Boston meetings between general manager Dick O'Connell and attorney Bob Woolf, the 36year-old Tiant decided he had waited long enough. He flew home and was met at the airport by Woolf and a gaggle of reporters.

"He (O'Connell) says I am already signed for this year and that's a lot of baloney," said Tiant, chomping on a big cigar beneath a blue denim and brown suede hat.

He appeared ready to explain the actual contract dispute, then stopped when Woolf began to interrupt him. "I don't think it's good to mention any more," he said.

He did explain that he had asked originally for a three-year contract, then dropped his demand to two years, adding: "Now he (O'Connell) is still monkeying around like (I was) a kid."

Tiant later turned his wrath toward specific comments in the media alleging he was having financial difficulties and had lost money betting at Florida dog tracks.

"Everybody's talking about me and they're writing about me...Sure I like to go to the track, play golf and go bowling. It's better than being drunk or taking dope.

"What I do in private life is not anybody's business. It's what I do on the mound" that counts.

Unless the Red Sox meet Tiant's contract demands, that he be given a contract of around $175,000 with a no-cut agreement through next season, the pitcher vowed to sell his local home and go back to Mexico.

He apparently does not want to pitch for another club since he did not ask to be traded. He is willing to go away from baseball a bitter man after 13 major league seasons.

"Nobody can crucify me for what I'm doing," said Tiant as perspiration slid off his flushed cheeks. "I have to get security for my family. If you don't love your family, you don't love anybody."

O'Connell said Wednesday the Red Sox could conceivably put Tiant on the restricted list, which would bar him from signing with another team.

"I am returning to Florida in a day or two. I laid the facts on the table for Woolf today," O'Connell said. "He (Tiant) is under contract to our club, and he is supposed to be in spring training. I do not remember a case of a player under contract refusing to report to his team.

"If he continues to refuse to report we could put him on the restricted list," O'Connell said. "If he is placed on that list he cannot play baseball in the major or the minor leagues, and that includes the Mexican League."

Tiant, 21-12 last season, has a lifetime major league record of 179-132. Since joining Boston in mid-1971 as an allegedly sore-armed righthander, Tiant has compiled a 97-65 mark in regular season play. He also won three post-season games in 1975 after leading the Red Sox down the stretch.

Meanwhile, O'Connell has taken care of the Red Sox' other problems. Lynn, Fisk and Burleson are all signed to multi-year contracts; Bill Campbell, who won 17 games and recorded 20 saves as a reliever for lowly Minnesota last year, was signed as a free agent; and powerhitting George Scott was reacquired from Milwaukee for Cecil Cooper and Rick Miller.

The Red Sox still managed to lose to the Detroit Tigers 5-4 Wednesday, with Mickey Stanley belting the game-winning solo homer off Campbell.

Elsewhere around the camps as the teams prepared for today's first full complement of exhibition games:

Steve Yeager hit his third home run in as many intrasquad games for the Los Angeles Dodgers ... Cincinnati Reds Manager Sparky Anderson announced that Dan Driessen, who replaces Tony Perez at first base, will bat sixth against right-handers and seventh against lefties....The New York Yankee team that starts in the first exhibition game against the Texas Rangers in Pompano Beach Friday could be the same team that opens the regular season for the defending American League champions, April 7. Yankee manager Billy Martin, who did not guve out a batting order, announced the following lineup for Friday's game: Chris Chambliss first base; Willie Randolph second base; rookie Mickey Klutts, shortstop; Graig Nettles, third base; Roy White, leftfield; Mickey Rivers, center field; Reggie Jacskon rightfield; Thurman Munson, catcher and Ron Blomberg, designated hitter. Munson, who took part in Wednesday's workout depsite a touch of the flu, may be scratched if he has not fully recovered by Friday. Martin already has announced that Ed Figueroa will pitch the exhibition opener, followed by Dick Tidrow and Ron Guidry....

Catcher Jerry Grote, who decided to abandon his announced retirement, Wednesday signed a package contract with the New York Mets to play for one more season and serve as a spring training and minor league instructor two years when he finally does retire.

Grote's signing leaves Dave Kingman as the lone holdout on the Mets' roster. Grote, 34, who batted .272 last season, will receive an estimated $125,000 for the coming season and perhaps more if he does more than serve as a backup catcher for John Stearns. "We have an understanding," was all the smiling Grote would say as he emerged from General Manager Joe McDonald's office.

In the Mets' only intra-squad game of the spring Wednesday, veteran Joe Torre and rookie Ed Kurpiel each drove in two runs as the Denny Sommers squad walloped the Tom Burgess team, 7-2. With the score tied, 2-2, in the fourth, Torre, serving as a designated hitter, doubled home the go ahead runs. One inning later, the Sommers squad iced it with three runs on a solo homer by Roy Staiger and a two-run homer by Kurpiel.

Lietzke Has Has Plenty of Time to Think About Record

MIAMI (UPI) — Ever since Bruce Lietzke joined the PGA tour a year and a half ago, his father predicted "Bruce will blossom in '77."

Blossom he did, with two wins on the winter tour. The younger Lietzke is gratified his father was able to watch his victories at both the Tucson and the Hawaiian opens before he died two weeks ago.

"I was very happy about that aspect of it inasmuch as my career was as important to him as it was to me," Lietzke said Wednesday during a practice round on the eve of the $200,000 Doral Open, his first tournament since his fathers' death.

The 25-year-old former University of Houston star said the three weeks he took off from the tour for his father's illness and death made him think more about his 26 straight tournament rounds of par or better — already a record.

"I've had three weeks to think about the streak and I'm very proud of it," Lietzke said. "But I don't think it adds any pressure while I'm on the course."

Lietzke's string started with a 67 in the last round of the Sahara Invitational last year and continued through the Texas Open. This year it has continued for 21 more rounds and along the way he has collected $123,350 to make him this year's leading money winner. During those 26 rounds, Lietzke has totaled a whopping 72 under par.

Lietzke said Wednesday he cannot be sure if the layoff hurt his game, but his practice rounds don't show it.

"You can never tell about practice rounds, but yesterday I had a good round and I was putting well," he said. "I had a 68 with four birdies and no bogeys."

Some of the other top stars here to play the famed Doral Blue Monster course this week include defending champion Hubert Green, Inverrary winner Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller, who has taken the last few weeks off to play in Australia.

Green's six-stroke win here a year ago launched him on a string of three straight victories, and he thinks he might be playing better tee to green than he was at this time last year.

Green hasn't won a tournament since those three last year, but has collected $20,964 so far this year and is 29th on the money list.

Among those missing for this year's event are Phoenix Open winner Jerry Pate, who is nursing a wrist injury, Bob Hope Desert Classic winner Rik Massengale and Los Angeles Open champion Tom Purtzer, who are both taking a rest. Arnold Palmer and Gary Player also are taking the week off.

Sam Snead pulled out of the tournament after he suffered a cut thumb in a minor auto accident. Snead, now 64, finished third in this event four years ago. Another late dropout was Australian Bruce Devlin.

Connors, Stockton Lead U.S. in World Cup Tennis

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Top seeded Dick Stockton and Jimmy Connors lead a favored American team against an Australian squad forced to replace injured leaders John Newcombe and Rod Laver in today's start of the $100,000 World Cup tennis tournament.

Stockton and No. 1 Aussie seed Tony Roche meet in a singles match tonight to open the four-day, best-of-seven tournament at the Hartford Civic Center.

Connors, seeded second behind Stockton, will play No. 2 Aussie seed John Alexander Friday night and return for a match against Roche on Saturday.

The strong U.S. team is favored to win its second straight tournament against Australia which has a 5-2 edge in the annual series. Last year, the U.S. team, led by returning captain Dennis Ralston, ripped the Aussies 6-1.

"The Bank Key Card. It's cash for pay-as-you-go people."

Most wallet-size plastic cards are credit cards.

The Bank Key Card is the Un-Credit Card.

With the convenient Bank Key Card, you can use your own checking account, even when the bank isn't open—like evenings, weekends and holidays. You can't use the Bank Key Card to spend money you don't have—but you can use it to get the money you do have, any time. You can get cash, pay for purchases, make deposits or make a deposit and get cash at the same time.

Look for the Bank Key sign at convenient nearby stores where it's simple, quick, and convenient to use your card. You get a record of every transaction so when you get home, you can enter it into your checkbook. And it's all just as confidential as if you went to the bank itself. Also no one but you can use your Bank Key Card because only you know the password that makes it work (and you punch that into a special keyboard, yourself).

Bank Key Here!

If you're a Kingston Trust checking account customer, you automatically qualify for the convenient Bank Key Card. It's as good as cash, and in many ways even better.

The Bank. Kingston Trust. All the bank you'll ever need.

President Outlines Youth Job Bids

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter proposes spending $1.5 billion during the next 18 months on three new efforts to reduce unemployment among young people. Congress probably will want to spend even more.

The President outlined his proposals in a news conference and special message to Congress Wednesday, noting that 3.4 million youngsters aged 16 through 24 are out of work.

They constitute half the nation's unemployed. The jobless rate among those 16 through 19 years old is 18.5 per cent and exceeds 40 per cent among minority youngsters in some urban areas, Carter said.

He urged creation of a National Youth Conservation Corps, similar to the Civilian Conservation Corps of the 1930s, in which youngsters aged 16-24 would work outdoors in the nation's parks, forests and recreations areas. Cost: $350 million for 35,000 jobs.

Carter also proposed a Youth Community Conservation and Improvement program in which youngsters 16-19 would be hired for community and neighborhood improvement projects and projects to restore natural resources on public land. Cost: $250 million for 30,000 jobs.

Carter's third and largest proposal was a "full range" of job and training programs, with emphasis on training, operated through existing Labor Department machinery.

The money would be aimed at disadvantaged youth 16-21 who are out of school and out of work. Half the funds would be used to encourage innovative youth employment programs. Cost: $900 million for 138,000 positions.

The package also would include doubling the size of the Job Corps in which 40,000 disadvantaged youngsters now receive job training at special centers around the country.

Carter's proposals grew out of talks between the administration and sponsors of seven youth employment bills now pending in Congress, and most of them were contained in one or more of those bills in some fashion.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., sponsor of one of the pending bills, and Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., sponsor of two of them, praised Carter's effort. Javits has called for spending $2.5 billion on youth employment next year, and the Senate Human Resources Committee recently asked for that amount in the budget.

Several Republicans have proposed $3.1 billion in new youth programs this year and next. One Senate staffer said Carter's package "may be considered only as a start."

Arabs Pledge Aid for Black Guerrillas

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Oil-rich Arab countries have pledged $10 million in aid to the black guerrilla campaigns in Rhodesia and South Africa.

The pledge, made Wednesday at the end of a three-day Afro-Arab summit, was part of an overall $1.5 billion aid package for Africa.

In return, the African nations assured the Arabs of continued diplomatic support in the Middle East conflict against Israel — a question of increasing Arab concern.

"What we have heard from the Africans at this conference affirms that there is no presence for Israel in Africa," Tunisian Prime Minister Habib Chatti said after the closing session.

"Israel has identified herself with South Africa and Rhodesia, but her cause is already lost because the cause of the whites in Rhodesia and South Africa is lost," Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda said.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

FRIDAY, MARCH 11

Your birthday today: Perfection of skills, improvement of social graces, smoothing of tactics characterize your coming year. Adjustment is in some ways difficult, in other ways too easy, as you're seldom asked for or shown any exact pattern. Relationships run to extremes, provide intense experience. Today's natives are energetic, sympathetic, guided more by emotion than logic. Those born this year have vivid imaginations, will make stories on any subject seem exciting.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Conditions mislead, not from deceit but from honest error, mistaken people doing their best. Emphasis is on music, related to unusual financial details.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Business done formally seems old-fashioned, but you at least know how you stand. Nobody does the expected. Favorite games, hobbies produce subtle surprises.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Control your temper, divert the energy into constructive channels, save a desirable relationship. Nothing is quite so great or so terrible as it appears.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Attached to offers are strings that you're supposed to be aware of or guess without being told. Certain people try to trade on your pride; avoid that ploy.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): It's worth an argument to stay out of a deal with too many angles. If you take a wrong direction, make corrections, don't make excuses or try to save face.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The overall view is glamorized, idealized, pleasant to see, not to be taken as literal truth. Checking each item as it comes up generates fair to good results.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Inventive ideas apply well in theatrical ventures, not to standard business. In buying to fit existing schemes, color matching is deceptive, difficult.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): No matter how hard you work at it, you get the impression that you're missing something important. Pay no attention to flattery, misdirected comment.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec 21): Complete what is begun In continuing a tradition, yoι build a long-term reputation Unsought speculative pro jects pop up, are too good tc be true.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Wait out tentative situations. What looks infallible turns out otherwise. Emotional highs and lows, shared, build ongoing relations for better or worse.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Enough people involved offers safety in numbers, balances out differences of opinion. Being peacemaker limits your share; don't short-change yourself.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Recent events throw new light on pending transactions. Take more time to decide. Permanent gain isn't achieved by backing people into awkward corners.

TEEN FORUM

By JEAN ADAMS, Ph.D.

HER TYPE: (Q.) About a month ago one of my friends fixed me up with this guy. He said he had liked me since fifth grade. (We are now in seventh.) He isn't the type of guy that most girls die over, but he's just the type of guy I like.

His name is Anthony, and none of my friends like him. They think he's the gay type and are always telling me to drop him in the dirt and find someone better. I won't.

I really like him. I think what all my friends say is a bunch of bull, and I won't take it. Please tell me if I should do what my friends say and drop him in the dirt, or should I hang onto him? — Urged in Massachusetts.

(A.) Do exactly as you have been doing. You feel that Anthony is right for you and he feels that you are right for him. That is what counts.

Advice from outside should be weighed with open eyes. Those giving the advice may have personal reasons — such as jealousy, or prejudice — for giving it.

It is easy for someone who is jealous or prejudiced to accuse someone else of being homosexual or a drug addict or any number of other things.

They don't have to prove it. All they may want is to cast suspicion or doubt. Such charges are unfair and unjust and should be dismissed unless there is proof — —or at least strong evidence.

ANOTMER: (Q.) I was going out with this girl Sara last year. Now she is going out with another guy. She and I still have feelings for each other and we are trying to get rid of the other boy. We've tried almost everything' Can you help us? — Confused in Connecticut.

(A.) All Sara has to do to get rid of the other boy is to break up with him. You cannot do that for her. She has to do it for herself.

If she wants to do so sufficiently, she will do it. If she doesn't, she won't.

I suspect she doesn't.

I suspect that you only imagine that she likes you better than she likes him. If that is so, face up to the real facts and you will no longer be confused. You can also get busy on your job of finding a new girl friend.

(Have a problem? Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas, 77001. Because so many write, Dr. Adams cannot answer you personally. But she will answer readers' questions in Teen Forum daily.)

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE

FORTUNE HELPS THOSE WHO HELP THEMSELVES

by Alfred Sheinwold

Everything will be wonderful in the year 2000. We'll all eat steak and ice cream, drive Cadillacs, wear emeralds and guess right whenever put to the test. While you're waiting, you can help yourself by making the opponents guess.

When today's hand was played many years ago, Pierre Albarran knew that the year 2000 was more than 50 years off. There was therefore no reason to suppose that the opponents would surely guess right if put to the test.

Albarran did not expect trumps to break when the opponents had bid for eleven tricks with only 20 points in high cards between them. Albarran ruffed the heart lead and blandly returned the ten of spades.

AGONY

West agonized, fearing that his partner had the singleton ace of trumps. Finally West put up the queen. But what next? East had been given no chance to signal.

A switch to diamonds would work if East had the ace and queen, but a club lead would work if East had just the ace. Put to the guess, West led his singleton club.

This gave Albarran his chance. The great French expert won the club return, drew trumps and ran his clubs to discard dummy's diamonds. He could then ruff a diamond in dummy to make his contract.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold: ♠AKJ 105 ♡None ◇73 ♣AQ9532. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one club. You can later bid and rebid the spades to indicate your 6-5 distribution. In general, you open the bidding in the longer of two biddable suits.

In King, JFK Assassinations

Data Points to Others

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There is evidence — not heard before — which suggests the involvement of others in the deaths of Martin Luther King, Jr., and John F. Kennedy, but the House assassination committee's chief counsel says the panel's infighting has prevented "a thorough check."

The committee — facing a March 31 termination — sought to restore its credibility Wednesday as Richard Sprague, the counsel, outlined the progress made so far by the panel which one member says has been more interested in "procedure and personality" than investigating.

A new chairman — in place of Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Tex. —installed, and Sprague apparently safe now as counsel, the committee is attempting to convince Congress the effort is worth making.

As new Chairman Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, presided Wednesday, Sprague told the panel:

— The investigation has been bogged down for weeks and "we have been unable to do what I consider a thorough check."

— "The sum total of information in each case would be in the nature of evidence indicating that others may have had knowledge or participated in arranging for the assassinations of Dr. King and Kennedy."

— Information in the Kennedy case "indicates there was some prior knowledge of the assassination before it occurred."

— Investigators have turned up uncorroborated evidence James Earl Ray was not alone in his murder of King.

"We intend to present in detail the extent of the full information to date, the names of witnesses who have come up or who we made some contact with and contacted us directly," Sprague said.

He assured committee members the information will "be new," and not "a rehash."

Meanwhile, in San Antonio, Tex., Gonzalez told the San Antonio Light newspaper that Sprague had met with Cuban agents and jeopardized the panel's work.

"It is no secret that the Cuban intelligence apparatus, the D.C.I (Directorio Central Intelligencia) was designed and built by the Russian KGB," Gonzales said.

Defector: GIs Alive In Viet

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Some Americans captured during the Indochina war are alive in North Vietnam, a defector from the Communist armed forces said Thursday.

The defector, who asked to remain unidentified so Vietnamese officials would not retaliate against his family, said the fact Americans were living in North Vietnam was "common knowledge" in his hometown of Haiphong and among his armed forces comrades.
